DEFENDS THE LAWS.

 view. We gladly meet him on this issue. Their contention that they have played hard games and that the Laws have not is wholly irrelevant, immaterial and has no bearing whatever on the case, because the rules do not state that any specific number of knocks or the weight of the opponents shall determine the championship. That they have won so handily over such hard teams should intensify their desire to meet a team which, as they say, has not faced such contests.
 He further reasons that as our financial support has been lukewarm, we are not deserving of the championship. Is it necessary to remind our Academic friend that the championship is measured by football ability, not by dollars and cents? That we have been unfortunate in our gate receipts is a matter which we regret, but should our financial misfortunes defeat our title to the championship? The athletic board will meet today and the decision as to the championship will be made. We have played our schedule and have won. We have challenged the Sophomores and they have refused to play. Is it right that the Sophomores should be privileged with non-compliance to the rules? Are we not entitled to the championship? The point at issue is clear cut. We do not doubt the integrity and honesty of the athletic board, and we believe that in the light of fair reasoning and justice they will recognize the Freshman Laws as champions.
 Members of the athletic board and students of the university, we submit to you the question at issue: According to the rules are the Freshman Laws entitled to the championship?
 A LAW (YER).

GOOD TALK AT CHAPEL.

James Ballangee, of Alabama, Explains Single Tax.

Mr. James Ballangee of Alabama, gave a very impressive exposition of the practical side of the "Single Tax" issue, in chapel yesterday morning. He explained just the necessary points in the theory which concurred very closely with that of the elaborate discussion given by Mr. White some weeks ago on the same subject.
 The practical side of it, according to the speaker, works admirably. They have a system in Alabama in a small section of the country purchased specifically for this experiment in economics in which the rent of this land is so adjusted as to supply a public fund to be expended in general improvements and for the necessities of the people.
 The lands are leased for a term nine years, but are adjusted annually so as to arrange the disadvantages of the different grades of soil and other things that may naturally arise. Some of it which only ten years ago cost but a few dollars an acre, is now paying $60 an acre into the treasury annually. Great improvements are constantly being made and the general morality of the people who reside there is raised to a higher standard because of the absence of speculative characters.
 Mr. Ballangee gave several illustrations that showed plainly the practical working of this experiment and the lecture was a marked success.
