

If you've been through this—you know how seldom one finds a collar and a cravat that will go well together. The main reason for this is that the collar is either just too big or just too small.

Engineering Notes.

Messrs. Walton and Hurlburt of the electrical engineering department, are working upon rotary and alternating hysteresis for their graduating thesis. It has been generally accepted that rotary and alternating hysteresis produce the same losses in the iron masses subject to the magnetic flux, i. e., there is no difference whether the alterations are in the magnetic lines produced by the rotation of the commutator in a dynamo, or whether the alternations are in the current which produces the magnetic lines, as in a transformer.

The object of this thesis is to prove or disprove this theory of trysteresis. They are determined not to fail because of mechanical imperfections, and have constructed ball bearing apparatus. A very ingenious method of measuring the heat generated is by imbedding a wire in the iron test piece and calculating the rise in temperature from its 'hot resistance.'

At the special meeting of the Engineering Society, the following men were elected as members of the Blue Print Board for 1906:

Business Manager—A. E. Miller.
Assistant Manager—M. F. P. Costellae.
Editor-in-Chief—J. L. Hershey.
C. E. Editor—Samuel Friedman.
M. E. Editor—G. S. Wilson.
E. E. Editor—C. I. Davis.

The Mechanical and Civil Engineering departments have ordered an electric blue printing apparatus. This method will be so much quicker that the sun exposure, will be independent of the weather.

The Seniors of the Mechanical Engineering Department were invited by Prof. Richards to visit the new city power plant of which himself and Prof. Morse are consulting engineers. At the time Prof. Richards was directing the setting of the large concrete mass and fastenings for the two heavy engines and generators.
