Camp at York.

It was announced last night that the university cadets will go into camp again this year at York, which was the location of the last encampment. York was not the most popular place, from the cadets' point of view, which might have been chosen but the merchants of the town offered flattering financial inducements, which fact doubtless had a great influence in securing the cadets.

The men go into camp May 30 and will take part in the Memorial day exercises held at York.
