A GOOD SEND-OFF.

The Nebraska football team leaves for Ann Arbor this evening at six o'clock, determined to play the greatest game ever put up by a football team of the west and to do what no team has been able to accomplish for the past six years—defeat Michigan. The Wolverines have practically the entire team which they played last season, only two men having failed to show up, and with the addition of a season's coaching to the experience which they have already had, they will in all probability be the hardest team to defeat in the country. Above all, they have Yost to coach them, and

Final Practice.

The football men continued work last night on the vacant piece of ground southwest of the Library Hall. The men showed a marked improvement in their work last night, and were able to get around on the sod more effectively than they have at any previous practice. A heavy sod makes it hard to secure a good footing, as the football shoes do not take a hold as well as they do in loose ground. The work last night was devoted to kicking, passing, and catching punts. Cotton was given a trial at kicking from placement, and was able to get the ball off in comparatively short time, owing to the excellent way in which Borg passed it. Morse tried punting and his work was especially worthy of praise. He sends the ball high and a good distance, the punts averaging about forty-five yards. Nelson was in Borg's place part of the time and was very sure in his passes regardless of how much Booth and Borg tried to "fuss" him. A short scrimmage was also indulged in by the squad, although no heavy work was done.

Last night's practice will be the last practice, except for a short practice in Ann Arbor Friday night, until the biggest game of the season for Nebraska and Michigan is played on Saturday. The work of both teams and the coaching of both schools have been directed to this one game of the season. Both teams will go on to the gridiron Saturday with the firm determination to win. The crowds of spectators that gather in Ann Arbor on next Saturday to see the Michigan-Nebraska game will witness an exhibition of football that will not be surpassed on the Western gridiron this year. Long and sensational runs will be out of the question, for the game will be a this means more than the presence of half a dozen stars to the team, for he has the reputation of being the greatest coach in America, and has developed teams which have gone through seasons without being scored against and which have rolled up unprecedented scores against colleges which could give other large teams an exciting time.

To defeat this remarkable team, three things are necessary—the utmost efforts of the coach, the unparalleled playing of the men, and the undivided support of the student body. The first two are assured. It is now the duty of the students to show that they are willing to do their part, and the opportunity to do so comes this evening. Preparations are made for the greatest send-off a Nebraska team ever received, and all the particulars will be announced at the special mass meeting this morning. The only thing left for the students to do is to see that these plans are carried out to the letter, and it is absolutely imperative that every man be down at the station to cheer for the men who are going to show what a Nebraska team under Booth's coaching can do. Do this, and a victory over Michigan is assured if it is in the power of any team on earth to win one.

Nebraska should be congratulated this year in the number of men who have turned out for football practice. Heretofore the squad has diminished in the latter part of the season until only the team and subs remained, but same forty men report every evening and work as earnestly to better the team as they did in the fore part of the season. Such enthusiasm among the men is surely indicative of a winning team. Other Western teams have experienced difficulty in this part of the game, that is, not having sufficient material to give the first team men good hard practice.

The team leaves this evening over the Burlington, going direct to Ann Arbor by the way of Chicago. They will arrive in Ann Arbor about 4 p. m. on Friday.

The men who will make the trip with Booth, Westover and Manager Morrison are:

A letter from R. E. Towne has been received by a member of the faculty, which will be of much interest to many of the Engineers. Mr. Towne says in part:

There are five of last year's class at work here for the Westinghouse Co. We are working in the apprentice class, which is an aggregation of men representing seventy-two colleges. These men form the Electric Club, which has over 600 members. It is a club for social and educational purposes. Each Saturday a college entertains the club at the rooms, prepares and does all the stunts, etc. Last Saturday night the men from Cornell did the work. Our turn will come later on. Now none of us are musical, or jugglers, so we have to form some other idea. We thought that we might get the use of some of those famous moving pictures of Nebraska scenes. Such an exhibition here could not help but be entertaining to all these people, who are almost all from the East, and I do not believe a better advertisement for Nebraska could be given.

The members who will go to Ann Arbor are in all probability:

Work is in progress for the construction of a residence for the superintendent at the North Platte sub-station. A barn is also being built to winter the stock. The cost of both will be about $5,600.

The final survey is being made for the sewer from the State Farm to Salt creek and the contract for the job will be let in a few days.
