BIG FAIR PLANNED

Y. W. C. A. HAVE ARRANGED FOR GOOD FAIR.

Many New Attractions Have Been Added—Others Coming on Every Train Entering the City.

Yes, Rome had her Olympic games; nations have their centennials, but we girls of the Young Women's Christian Association of the University of Nebraska are going to have a County Fair.

Those who have been there before know well what it all means. They read, as they run through the halls, those bright colored posters and announcements on the walls. They comprehend their meaning at a glance. The boys recall the memories of former years in such a way that the very thought of the Fair being held next Saturday evening makes them chuckle with joy. But what a pity that only a few really know, while a good many more do not know, what the County Fair is. Still, I don't know why I should take the matter so seriously. I have done all I can, and when a girl puts her whole heart into her work and does her best, I believe she ought to be content, no matter what the results will be. But really it is amusing and I just can't help but feel sorry for some of those innocent, unsophisticated strangers. They know that a County Fair may be managed successfully by a lot of men, but don't see how it can ever be managed by women. They know how a county fair could be held in the open field, but don't see how it could ever be held in a closed building. These and a hundred other questions perplex them. They gaze at the posters, they read the Daily Nebraskan, they resort to every means imaginable in trying to find out what it really is. I have done my level best in trying to explain it to some of them. Why, when I came to tell about the caterpillar, the baby show and the toy show, I simply pawed the air for adjectives and yet I know I haven't done much good, for this afternoon when I asked those same people to buy tickets, they sighed and began making excuses, and as they walked away I fancied I could hear them whispering, "fake—foolishness—graft."

Well, it really is too bad, but still I don't know why I should care so very much. It really hurts them more than it does me. I don't blame some of them for thinking about it as they do. The innocent and unsuspecting public has been so often deceived and so grossly deceived by foolishness that its the hardest thing in the world to get people to believe a truth. I believe there ought to be some way of calling things by their right names and then if people knew what they would see when they got there they would all go to the County Fair.

I wonder if they will find all they expect to find if they do come to the Fair. Of course they can't expect to see such things as Hereford cattle and Cochon pigs and Chester White chickens, but then there will be so many other things there so much prettier and cuter than chickens and pigs that I don't believe anyone would care to look at them if they were there. But I believe I know what is going to keep a good many from coming. They are afraid they would get lost among those crowds of people. They have been to county fairs before and that is exactly what happened to them. I really wish I might be able to make them believe that nothing of the kind will happen. And if they do get lost I will hunt for them. If I could convince them of this I am sure a good many more would come. However, I don't think I ought to feel hurt if they don't come, for I have done all I can and when a girl does all she can she ought to be satisfied.

The Mid-Semester Report.

In order that it may keep in closer touch with the work now being done by the students of this university, the Executive Office has requested that the heads of the various departments make a mid-semester report. This report, which is due next Wednesday, will enable the Registrar to "get a line" on those students whose work thus far has not been satisfactory and to sound the alarm bell before it is too late to make amends.

Although this is the first time in the history of this institution that mid-semester reports have been required, the system will doubtless prove a success, since it will show the student exactly where he stands in his studies and what he will have to do if he wishes to retain his name upon the university records.

Friday Program.

The convocation period this morning will be occupied by a song recital by Mr. H. B. Street. The program is as follows:

GAME POSTPONED.

Rain Prevents the Game Between the Seniors and Juniors.

The football game scheduled to be played yesterday afternoon between the Juniors and Seniors had to be postponed on account of the muddy condition of the field and the disagreeableness of the weather. The game will be played Wednesday, November 23, on Nebraska Field at 1 p. m. The interclass managers announce that the tickets which were sold for the game yesterday will be good on Wednesday.

The interest in interclass football has increased greatly in the last two weeks and a large crowd would doubtless have been in evidence at the game yesterday had the rain not prevented the playing of the game. The postponement of the game will give the teams almost a week longer for practice. Coaches Weller and Fenlon have been working hard with their men and the playing next Wednesday should be much above the average for class games. Very nearly all of the men on the class teams this year are men who have had experience either on the "scrub" or on some high school team in the state.

Girls' Glee Club.

Mrs. Raymond and Manager Dirks are experiencing as hard a time in selecting the members of the Girls' Glee Club as the latter did in selecting the men's. The closest of competition between the co-eds has existed ever since the first try-out. The final selection was to have been made last night, but owing to the closeness of four or five candidates it was decided to give them another trial. It is remarkable to see the amount of enthusiasm that has been manifested by the girls in this work. For it is entirely new and what originally was intended for an experiment has been a surety. Those in charge are quite optimistic over the prospects, and predict for Nebraska's Glee and Mandolin Clubs the best of results.

LIGHT PRACTICE

RAIN PREVENTS A SCRIMMAGE WITH L. H. S.

Team Goes Through Some Fast Signal Practice—Johnson's Ankle Keeps Him Out of Work.

Owing to the condition of the field, the scheduled scrimmage between the varsity and Lincoln High School teams was not pulled off last night. Both teams were ready for the work and nothing but the rain could have prevented it. Since the work of the scrubs against the varsity on Thursday night the High School boys had taken considerable confidence unto themselves regarding their ability to score on the varsity. Up to the past two years the Lincoln lads have always scored on us, but their time seems to have passed.

Booth had the men out for signal practice on the sod just south of the Library building last night. The work of the men was highly satisfactory, as they exhibited more speed than at any practice since the Colorado game. The interference on end runs has been strengthened, and the men, as the formation now is, offer more protection to the man running than the work of any previous formation. Johnson's ankle still continues to give him trouble, and he has not been out for practice this week at all. Booth is trying to bring Denslow around in time for the Illinois game. With this speedy little end in the game our chances against the Easterners would be advanced considerably.

Today the team will go through its last practice before the Doane game.

Stenographic Bureau Remain.

The report that the stenographic bureau would be moved out of the University and off the campus has caused considerable talk among the members of the faculty. If this was done it would mean that the work would be taken down town at extra expense and much inconvenience to the instructors. While the room now occupied by the bureau will be used for a check room, yet the bureau will be given quarters in some other part of the campus, and remain, as it has heretofore, a part of the University.

Dr. and Mrs. Ward entertained members of the faculty at their home Tuesday evening in honor of Professor Reighard of the University of Michigan. Professor Reighard is one of the leading American authorities on fishes.

Dr. Ross returned from a short trip to Missouri Wednesday. He delivered an address, under the auspices of the Department of Economics and Sociology, before the students of the State University.

During the Thanksgiving week Professor Bessey goes to Oberlin, Ohio, for a short visit with friends and relatives. While he is absent Dr. Clements will meet his classes. As Oberlin is the seat of one of the largest colleges in Ohio, he will take occasion to inspect some of its departments.
