

THE CORNHUS

Maurice A. Benedict, quarter-back, end, and half-back, weight 151. Benedict got his first football experience at Lincoln High, where he played three years. His work at passing, punting and running in punts clinched him a place on the team in his freshman year in the University. "Benedict's" work for the four years he has been in Nebraska has won him a reputation among the best on the Western gridiron. He has been a member of the varsity track, baseball and basketball teams. This is Benedict's senior year, and his home is in Lincoln.

W. N. Johnson, end, weight 153 pounds. "Bill" got his first football experience on the L. H. S. team, where he played three years, and his speed and quickness have made secure his position at varsity end. He has played in this position for three years, besides he has been on the track team for two years. Johnson is registered in the senior academic. His home is in Lincoln.

J. Glen Mason, full back, weight 160 pounds. This is Glen's third year at this position; he has held the position ever since his freshman year. His fierce line bucking and tackling has placed him high as one of the Western full-backs. Glen played two years on the L. H. S. team, and his home is in Lincoln.

Walter C. Booth, head coach, came to Nebraska in 1900 after a series of disastrous seasons and in the first year developed a team that surprised the football west. It was due almost entirely to his untiring efforts that the Cornhusker team was able to defeat every opponent in 1902 and 1903, and in the former year was not scored against. He has raised Nebraska from a second-rate team among those of the Missouri valley to a position where even the leaders of the Conference look upon her as an opponent to be feared. While not coaching Mr. Booth is a practicing attorney in New York city, and will soon devote his entire attention to his profession.

C. E. Cotton, tackle and guard, weight 198 pounds. Cotton has played on the team for four years at these positions, and has been a valuable man to carry the ball when Nebraska needed a few yards. His only other experience outside the varsity was at Yale in 1904, where he made quite a reputation against Hogan. Cotton's home is in Lincoln.

H. S. Wilson, tackle, end and half-back, weight 180 pounds. "Bill" has played on the varsity for three years, and his speed has made him one of the most valuable men on the team. He also played on the varsity baseball team one year. His first experience in football was at the Illinois State Normal School, where he played one year. "Bill" is a Junior and lives in Lincoln.

A. H. Lundin, tackle, weight 167 pounds. Fred has played on the varsity for two years and has shown remarkable strength at defensive work. His first experience in football was on the Lead, South Dakota, high school team. He has been one of the most prominent men in school since his entrance. Fred is a member of the Senior Academic and Law classes. His home is Lead, South Dakota.

J. K. Morrison, manager of the football team of 1905, is a member of the Senior Law class. Morrison has been very prominent in University affairs and has been the recipient of many honors from the students at large. He has proven himself trustworthy of every office conferred upon him and has discharged his duties with honor to himself and the University. "Johnny" was assistant manager in '03 and '04, and knows all the "ins" and "outs" of the work. The work of the manager this year has been exceptionally difficult owing to the many large games the varsity has played. Morrison's home is Gretna, Nebr.

JACK BEECHER
("Genial")
Trainer

R. T. Wenstrand, guard, weight 212 pounds. "Stiff" had had some experience in football in the interclass games since he has been in the University, but this is his first year on the varsity, where he has made good. Wenstrand is registered from Wahoo in the Senior Academic class.

D. C. Burns, tackle, weight 185 pounds. "Shorty" has been on the varsity squad for two years and because of his strong determination to "do things" he has been a good player. He is registered in the Junior Civil Engineering class, and hails from Wilsonville, Nebr.

H. W. Craig, full-back, weight 174 pounds. Craig won his "N" in the Iowa game last year. He is substitute full-back and is a fierce line plunger. He is a member of the Junior class and was president of it in its first year.
