The Messiah.

The annual production of the famous "Messiah" will fill the last convocation period before the holidays, Wednesday, December 20. The soloists are already engaged and are working on their parts. Mrs. Raymond is anxious to have as large a chorus as possible, and urges all who have ever participated in a rendition of the "Messiah" to come to as many of the rehearsals as they can, whether they belong to the chorus or not, and to take part in the production. Rehearsals are held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at five o'clock in Memorial Hall.

Educational Meeting.

The Northwest Nebraska Educational Association met at Crawford on Friday and Saturday, December 1 and 2. A very complete program was arranged and a number of prominent educators from this part of the state were set down for speeches. The principal address of the Saturday morning session was delivered by Inspector Hodgman, whose topic was "The Other Side: A Defense of Teachers Against the Charge That Modern American Lawlessness Has Its Seat in Lax School Discipline."

Football Men Feasted.

Sam Westerfield gave the football men the annual banquet at his restaurant last Friday night. About twenty men were present and enjoyed the feast thoroughly. Dr. Pound presided and a number of toasts were given.

Illustrated Lecture.

The convocation hour tomorrow morning will be filled by a lecture by Professor Barber on "Homes of Pompeii." The lecture will be illustrated with a number of colored lantern slides.
