NEBRASKA INDIANS

Varsity to Line Up Against GUY GREEN'S AGGREGATION.

Two Hard Games Are Expected for Today and Saturday—Morse and Nilsson to Pitch.

Two games of baseball that should be of interest to the local as well as the varsity fans will be played on the University campus today and Saturday. The game today will be called at four o'clock. And now, in order to fully appreciate these two games, it might be well to glance backward and see what the Cornhuskers have been doing. They opened the season on April 6th by holding "Ducky" Holmes to a score of 2 to 1, although the larger figure was in his favor. Nilsson pitched the game and gave them one less hit than the varsity got, or five to six. And it was almost an errorless game, there being only one error in the entire game. The second game on the 7th, was postponed on account of rain.

And now for the Easter trip south. The schedule on this trip started out on April 11 very encouragingly for the Nebraskans, for the Manhattans were shut out to the tune of 10 to 0, and Morse put one over the back fence for a home run. But the Jayhawkers had blood in their eye and since they haven't been troubled with grasshoppers and drouths for some time in Kansas, the boys had been enjoying full rations and lots of exercise. This, coupled with memories of the past, just filled them to the muzzle with vigor and spirit until, when the sun began to lower, the score stood 4 to 3 in Kansas' favor and not time enough left for the Lincolnites to get into the harness and scrape up another run. But the next day, on the 13th, they added insult on injury by taking advantage of three errors in the ninth and making a tie score of 5 to 5. Dort was doing noble work in the box and kept them to a score of 3 to 5 until the fatal errors put ginger into the opponents. And in spite of the fact that Eager had to meet the military at Fort Riley on the 14th, the Sunflower lads just kept right on playing until Old Sol got tired of their foolishness and put out the lights at the end of the twelfth inning, when the score still held 5 to 5. And maybe the boys didn't show the effect of their overwork! Why, the score was only 11 to 2 and the soldiers went marching on.

Dort held down the box on the 16th at St. Mary's and the visitors suffered by a score of 4 to 2, and the varsity got four hits to St. Mary's two.

Weary and heavy laden from a hard trip, Morse once more "sicked" his bunch onto the Bryanites on Wednesday, the 18th, and held them by 6 to 0, but of course the Leaguers were glad to be held so long as the big figure was on their side of the ledger.

But the varsity looked up and took nourishment yesterday, much to the chagrin of the professionals. Bellamy slammed out a timely two-bagger at a critical moment and let two men touch home plate, which settled the old-timers and made the apprentices happy to think that they could turn tables and score 3 to 2 in the University's favor. Oh, the bunch is simply baseball mad, and what they will do to the Indians in the next two games will be a matter of history. And on the other hand, if the warriors are as fierce as their names, it's going to be a hard bunch to lay hands to, for one would almost get his tongue wrapped around his eye-tooth so that he couldn't see what he was saying in trying to pronounce such names as "Moltanmah," and he'll play left field; Wau-seka, right field; Saboke, center field; Nokemas; Waboose, second base; Grant, third base; Jucucanea, shortstop; Keboskeshick, catcher, and Justice sounds good for a twirler, and Rapp, Thorgy, Uncas and Johnson are also on the twirling list.

Morse will pitch for the varsity tomorrow, and since there will be no league games today and Saturday, the coast is clear for a large bunch of fans on the campus.

KRISHNA AT CONVOCATION.

Tells of India's Sorrows and Sufferings.

Pundit Krishna of Bombay gave a very interesting and instructive talk on education in India at convocation yesterday. Although the theme of his lecture was education, the subject matter was largely a tirade against British rule in India.

The educational system of India, said Pundit Krishna, can scarcely be called a system so limited is it. Yet in its organization it is not greatly unlike the American system, six years being allotted to primary study and four years to the middle and high school periods, respectively. In order to obtain an A. B. degree the Hindu must spend another four years in college, in addition to which two more years are required for the degree of M. A., and three for the degrees of L. L. B. or M. D.

"But the educational facilities of India are miserably weak," continued Krishna. "The Hindu people pay $165,000,000 toward the maintenance of the British army in India every year, and yet the British government refuses to appropriate more than $10,000,000 for the education of India's two hundred millions of people. There is not a single technical school in the whole empire!" There are but three courses of instruction given in the colleges of India: law, medicine and literature.

In speaking of the social and economic conditions of India, Pundit Krishna bitterly denounced the British rule as now enacted in the Hindu empire. The Hindu is taxed on a basis of 45 per cent, is compelled to pay British officials and clergymen enormous salaries and pensions and receives in return miserable protection, scarcely any education and in time of famine, starvation.

Upon concluding his talk Krishna alluded very forcibly to Thomas Jefferson. "The name of Thomas Jefferson," said he, "is known throughout our millions of people and had we more Jeffersons among us India would be a free nation today."

The address was well attended, the hall being crowded to its capacity.

Junior Party.

Going back to the farm. Every Junior will lead the simple life on May the 5th, and their boyish and girlish hearts will throb with pleasure as they breathe the pure air and play blind-man's-buff. If you could only see the list of good things they are going to have to eat and could see the little tots in their pink bows and blue sashes you would wish you were a boy again. If you want to have a wooden plate at the grass banquet you must get a ticket beforehand from the committee.

If you are a Junior you can get one for 35 cents. If you are not you can't get one at all.

TO AUDIT REPORTS

DR. ROSS RESIGNS AND PROF. BARBER TAKES HIS PLACE.

Faculty to Audit All Reports of Student Managers—Rigid Rules in Regard to Handling of Funds.

The faculty committee on student organizations has had several meetings during the past few weeks to take steps toward looking into the accounts of the different student treasurers. Dr. Ross, who has been chairman of the committee, has resigned and Chancellor Andrews appointed Professor Barber as his successor.

The committee as it now stands is as follows: Professor Barber, chairman; Professors Chase, Barr-Clapp, Condra, Emerson, Fling, Frye, Haecker, Morse, and Wolcott. This committee was appointed by the Chancellor last spring, a year ago.

The aim of the committee is to audit the accounts of all committees or organizations of students. In this way all idea of graft by students will be mitigated, and those concerned will feel that every one has been treated fairly. For a long time every student in the University has felt that there should be some way by which such a promiscuous system of grafting could be stopped. The faculty committee is the only way to do this, and do it effectually, for the student managers have more or less fear of faculty control. Consequently this will be the means of making the handling of student funds more economical.

There are many functions and publications that will come under the supervision of this committee. The most prominent of these and their managers are as follows:

Senior Prom—Ed. Adams.
Junior Prom—J. E. Edgerton.
Daily Nebraskan—T. F. Naughton.
Cornhusker—A. E. Burr.
Senior Book—E. Don Skeen.
Blue Print—A. E. Miller.
Senior Law Book—C. M. Rolfsen.

Besides these, this committee would have the power to investigate the reports of the different class treasurers.

This system of faculty supervision has been carried on very effectively in other western universities and there is no reason why it should not be a success in Nebraska. In most of the schools this supervision goes so far as to direct the managers in their work, especially in regard to student publications, and then handle the finances among themselves. This, of course, seems to be carrying things too far, but Nebraska has reached a happy medium and should profit thereby.
