Again politics begins to hum and those interested are gathering around the official kettle waiting for a hand out. On May 10th the student members of the Athletic Board will be elected for the ensuing year. Nearly every student remembers the election of last year, and how the cry of corruption in University politics went up after the election. We do not wish to say anything about this "so-termed corruption," but there is another matter of more vital importance.

Last year both factions placed in the field very capable men. Men who were broad in their views, and who could not be influenced by trifling jealousies. The result was that a good bunch of student members were elected. This year it should be urged that the utmost care be exercised in putting up men who are most capable of handling the work they would be called upon to undertake. These men should be ones of mature judgment and absolutely without any prejudices against any person or any matter except such prejudices be justifiable.

that the remaining weeks of this year would be made the most profitable of his college life. Seniors, Juniors and Sophomores, wake up and give signs of life. Are you going to let a first-year man set an example that you should be setting? It seems as though the Seniors generally feel that they have worked hard for seven semesters and that the last should be a period of relaxation and good fellowship. But there is as much for the Seniors to do in his last semester as in the first. The idea that a "sheepskin" is soon to be forthcoming does not signify that the race is run and that your future is to be over a broad and golden path. Not only does this apply to the Senior, but also to the entire student body. The four years of University life are, without a doubt, the happiest of a lifetime, yet they should be the most profitable. To those just beginning let us urge that you appreciate your surroundings and make the best of them, and to those in the midst of your course and just finishing, take a brace and concentrate your best efforts along the most beneficial lines of work.

STUDENTS' DEBATING CLUB.

Preliminaries Held Saturday, April 21.
Teams Will Be Chosen.

Saturday night, April 21st, in Union Hall, there will be held the preliminaries for the intercollegiate debates. Eight men; six speakers and two alternates, will be chosen to represent the Students' Debating Club in their annual forensic contests, which this year will be with the Dialectic Debating Club of Wesleyan University and the Alpha Omega Debating Club of Doane College.

Any member of the club is eligible to participate in the preliminaries. Any student not yet a member of the club may arrange to enter the try-outs on application to the secretary of the club. Competent judges have been chosen and all will be given fair play.

There are plenty such men in school and it only rests with the two factions to select them.

As the nice spring weather manifests itself there is a general tendency among the students in the University toward "sluffing." They can not be censured so severely for this either, for the fine spring weather we have been having has been very conducive to recreation and rest. But the students should shake off any weather disease that may be bothering them, and keep earnestly at work. Let the next two months be two of the busiest months of your school life.

A Freshman was heard to resolve

The question for debate is the Hepburn-Tilman rate bill, and reads as follows: Resolved, That the railroad rate bill as passed by the house of representatives on January 29 should become a law.

The date of the intercollegiate debates has not been permanently decided on yet, but in all probability will be in the latter part of May. Both of the other clubs have strong reputations for debating and a lively contest is expected. The Alpha Omegas locked horns in forensic work with the Students' Debating Club last year and the "Students" won by only a small margin.

Time to be thinking about pennants. You will be pleased with ours at the Uni. Book Store.
