The action of the Associated Barbs on last Thursday in regard to the Athletic Board election has caused quite a sensation in University politics. Up to the time of the meeting every one had expected that their idea was to put up a "slush" fund and try to beat the Frats "at their own game." But the extremely opposite attitude taken was such a severe shock that many have not recovered yet. What was to have been the greatest Barb and Frat fight in the history of the institution has simmered down to a very tame affair, with the Frats simply nominating a ticket, and casting a few votes to secure election.

From a moral standpoint it is very evident that the Barbs did the only thing possible. Corruption has raged rampant in Athletic Board elections in the past, one faction being just as guilty as the other. Votes have been purchased and "no bones" made about it, the side putting up the most money carrying personal notes to the extent of about eight hundred dollars. With the aid of this fund received in the elections, the Board would be able to pull out to the end of the year without incurring further indebtedness. But without it these faculty members will have to sign another personal note for two hundred dollars to bridge out until next fall. Of course, this is perfectly all right these men should do this. It is the royalty they should pay for membership on the Board. At least this is what one would gather from what some of the students say, and no one can doubt but what every student is absolutely fair minded.

It seems that this year is, of all years, the most inopportune time to take the move that has been taken. We, as students, should feel it an unwritten law to do as much as possible to keep student affairs on a sound financial basis. If the tax must be abolished let us take it up at some more opportune time.

Y. W. C. A. BREAKFAST.

Plan to Have May 5th as the Day for the Great May Morning Breakfast.

Is May 5th an eventful day? It seems so, for the breaking of the dawn will be greeted by the merry laughter of a corps of cooks who know how things in the kitchen should be done. Nowadays they don't burn down the sty in order to roast the pig. They don't simply fill a kettle half full of water, drop in a soup-bone, add a few whole potatoes, a cucumber, a turnip, a cup of salt and a handful of peppe, and call it soup. They measure the water that has been sterilized, pour it into a kettle that has been burned out with alcohol, they begin to watch and develop a soup-bone while it is still young and tender, feed the calf only the most scientifically prepared foods

Among The Summer Cottons

GENUINE FRENCH ORGANDIES

We are showing a very choice line of French organdies in exclusive patterns for handsome summer or evening gowns. Nothing will make up more effectively than these sheer fabrics printed by the very best French printers. The weaves are plain or barred, all with large floral patterns in soft colors—roses, apple blossoms, maple leaves, fleur-de-lis, etc., in pinks, lavender, blue, yellow, and green. These come only in short pieces, so you are sure of something individual. 32 inches wide, 45c, 50c and 55c a yard.

ENGLISH EFLEURE

A printed cotton cloth that has the appearance of a silk voile of very soft texture. It is of English manufacture and the printing is exceptionally handsome. Many of the designs give the effect of a printed net, the background being lightly barred or dotted with black; others resemble printed silk voile and printed satin striped chiffon. The floral designs are in the softest colors. The fabric is entirely new, this being its first season. 28 inches wide, 50c a yard.

SILK ORGANDIES

are much softer in texture than the all cotton and drape beautifully. They come in a large variety of patterns and qualities. The fine silk warp gives a rich, natural lustre and is often thrown to the surface in dots, sprays, or allover patterns, over which are printed large flowers. They are as dressy as many more expensive fabrics. 27 inches wide, 25c, 29c, 35c, 50c and 55c a yard.

PRINTED SILK ERLIENNE

This material has a heavy cotton warp and a very fine silk filling which gives the ribbed effect characteristic of poplin or eolienne. The white background is decorated with an irregular design in silk, the whole printed over with delicately colored large floral designs. Suitable for dressy afternoon gowns, party and evening wear. 27 inches wide, 55c a yard.

has usually been the side to win. Girls have sold their votes as promiscuously as they would go down town for an ice cream soda. Everyone seemed to take it as a natural course of events for votes to be sold and bought. People were pledged to vote for one ticket as soon as the tickets were nominated. Never has money been considered if victory was to be the outcome. But now a halt is called, and the question it being discussed pro and con everywhere, although little has ever been accomplished by so-called "hot air."

So far as expediency is concerned we think the tax should absolutely remain. The Athletic Board is in debt and what little revenue comes in at this time, however small, will help them greatly. Two faculty members of the Board are at the present time in order that the special cut may have the proper flavor. And as for vegetables, they are selected with the greatest care. Many prefer the topless kind, since all the flavor is retained in the root.

But why talk about soup? They don't serve that for breakfast. But the menu at the Y. W. C. A. girls' May morning breakfast will be just as carefully prepared for the domestic science girls know how it should be done. There'll be coffee that's the real thing and no chicory goes, genuine eggs, and the committee guarantees to furnish a pedigree with each one and a written guarantee that the depositor of each one still lives.

There'll be breakfast foods that will heal the sick and make the well look happy, all imported directly from the various sanitariums.

Time to be thinking about pennants. You will be pleased with ours at the Unl. Book Store.
