The Phoenix.

Mr. F. L. W. attempts to show that the Associated Barbs have made a deliberate attempt to bribe the Athletic Board to remove the tax. Here he is again in error. The $150 proposition was not advanced by the Associated Barbs; it was the work of a few individuals. The Athletic Board argued that they needed the money and must retain the tax to get it. A few individuals offered to raise $150 by subscription in order to remove this barrier. On request of a faculty member the matter was brought before the Board by a representative of the individuals. The Board refused the offer and their financial argument fell to the ground.

He bases his whole argument on the proposition that the barbs do not support athletics and, therefore, they should have no voice in the management. He desires to place the control of student enterprises on a money basis and build up an aristocracy. He certainly does not believe in a democracy, to say the least. Why does not the gentleman take the stump in favor of an aristocratic form of government for the United States. Let him advocate a tax on the ballot in state and national elections. Shall we allow the poor man who pays no taxes a voice in the management of our government when he does not support it financially? Shall we place the control in the hands of the moneyed class because they give more financial support? In supporting his case he cites his "window" argument, which is at best very badly exaggerated, if not false. He also says we are "tight," but he admits we offered to raise $150 towards paying the deficit. He, further, states, that we did not contribute freely to the fund used to send Nebraska's representative to the Football Rules Committee. But he does not show that we had an opportunity to contribute. He does not touch the "comp" question. Where do most of the "comps" go, to frats or barbs?

On the whole, they avoid the real issue. Not one of them seem willing to defend their system. They use the ad hominem argument—throw mud at us. Let them show that their system does not involve corruption and questionable campaign methods. Let them meet the issue and stop "beating around the bush."

May Morning Breakfast.
Gee, you've got a mean disposition! Why don't you jolly up and take her to the May morning breakfast? It's going to be a perfect dandy and you'll be sure to get your money's worth. The girls have worked it up with lots of care and how can it help be the best?

Strawberries till you can't rest! And such strawberries! Great big red juicy ones, to eat with pulverized sugar. You know what Goethe says about strawberries? No? You better read up, then.

They're going to have biscuits, too, dandy white ones, golden brown on top and about three inches high. They aren't the kind that Dr. Ross' mother used to make, either, for the undercrust is just as good as the upper—and, besides this, more lovely things to eat than my humble pen can describe.

Moreover—and this I am sure of, the waiters are all to be girls from up here whom we all know—so you can pay your money, take your choice of table and talk to the girl you'd rather.
Now, if these aren't the best inducements any one in the world could hold out, I'm sure I don't know what you can want.

Those Proposals.
As promised in Saturday's Nebraskan, there is more to be said about "The Evening of Proposals," which is to be given May 5th in Memorial Hall. First, as the title indicates, there will be more than one proposal upon that occasion. Usually one proves very interesting. Imagine the three-fold interest and excitement when it is known that there will be three in the same evening. The three plays in which these events occur are bright and entertaining. The titles are "The Morning Call," "The Last Waltz," and "A Proposal Under Difficulties."
Then the price of admission is small, only twenty-five cents, so that everyone may come and bring several friends.
