A NEW LEASE OF LIFE.

At the close of the school year 1905-1906 the Daily Nebraskan was left in a somewhat disorganized condition. The stock of the paper, which had previously been in private hands, was purchased by the Board of Regents and direct control of the paper was vested in the Publication Board. Election to the staff of the paper was deferred until the beginning of the present year with the exception of the Editor-in-Chief and Managing Editor.

Notwithstanding the doubtful prospects for the prompt and successful issue of the Nebraskan this fall, work was started early and in this edition

University in the west, and we are confident you will never regret your choice. You will need the Nebraskan to put you in touch with University life at the earliest possible opportunity and we want your subscriptions now.

SANE SPELLING.

College journals, especially in the largest and most influential of our universities, should reflect in their columns any reform in journalism that owes its origin to the careful study of competent men. Such a reform is the "Sane Spelling" of which Chancellor Andrews spoke in convocation this morning.

We have given a resume of the arguments in favor of the adoption of spelling as advocated by the Simplified Spelling Board, elsewhere in this issue, and nothing further needs to be said in our estimation. We simply wish to state our policy for the year in this connection.

So far as it is possible the Daily Nebraskan intends to use the simplified spelling of the three hundred words already proposed by the Board, in all of its items, whether news or editorial. This will necessitate extra proof reading for a time and possibly will produce some confusion between the new spelling and the ordinary method. We hope to overcome both of these difficulties in a short time, however, and remain consistently reformed.

As Chancellor Andrews said this morning, "The Daily Nebraskan has set the advance pace in the field of college journalism by adopting 'Sane Spelling.' Such progressiveness on the part of your own college paper merits encouragement from you. Subscribe for the Daily Nebraskan and promote the good cause of spelling reform."

Hello, Fellows...

Glad to see you back. I need you in my business. And I think you need me in your business—you've no business to pay more than $2.50 for a hat—while I am in business.

BUDD, $2.50 HATTER, 1141 O St.
WHY PAY MORE?

we are prepared to announce our Editor-in-Chief, the Managing Editor, the News Editor, and the Business Manager. Our complete staff will, we hope, be announced in an early issue.

Commodious and convenient quarters have been equipped for the paper in the southwest corner of the basement of the Administration Building and students and members of the Faculty will be welcome at any time. We shall have for general use an exchange table where exchanges from the leading colleges and universities will be placed upon arrival. This is a feature of the Nebraskan that should appeal to every student and especially to members of the Faculty who have been to other institutions.

To returning students The Daily Nebraskan offers a word of greeting. We are glad to see you back again and we ask your support in making the paper the best it has ever been. To new students we extend a hearty welcome. You have come to the best
