MASS MEETING TODAY

RALLY FOR AMES

BIG MEETING THIS MORNING IN MEMORIAL HALL.

Songs and Speeches—Prospects for Saturday's Game—Basketball Practise Starts.

The second football rally of the year will be held in Memorial Hall this morning at the Convocation hour. An unusually interesting program has been arranged and it is planned to keep the enthusiasm going from start to finish.

Dr. Pound will preside as he did last week and speeches may be expected from Dr. Maxey of the College of Law, Assistant Coach Stuart, and either Captain Mason or Manager Eager. The Band will be on hand Nebraska on the jump and the chance for rooting practise today should be accepted by all who intend to see the game on Saturday.

Football practise will be secret all this week. The afternoons are being spent at the University Farm and reports of the team's progress are encouraging. With Johnson in his place at end and with every prospect that Taylor will be able to play on Saturday, the outlook is much brighter than it was early in the week. The cripples are steadily improving, and with the exception of McDonald, all of them should be able to play their best game on Saturday.

Last night after practise, the squad took a stiff cross-country run from the Farm to the gymnasium. This work will probably be continued all week and is expected to develop much bet-

THE IOWA TEAM

The Iowa State College team this season is one of the strongest elevens in the history of that institution. With twenty-five of the college's best men on its football squad, it has been able to pick a team which can undoubtedly outplay any eleven within the dominions of the Hawkeye state and which, according to football fans, will give the Cornhuskers the hardest run for their money of any team playing in Lincoln this season.

To all appearances it is a likely bunch of "mole-skinners," but, as "pig-skin" history in Nebraska and elsewhere will amply testify, appearances, like comparative scores, count for but very little. A team to win a game from the Cornhuskers must "produce the goods" in larger packages and of better quality than those produced by

THE GENIUS

PROFESSOR HOWARD DESCRIBED HIM AT CONVOCATION.

It is the Mission of Democracy to Aid in His Development.

Prof. G. E. Howard gave a very interesting address on "Democracy and Genius" at Convocation yesterday morning. There are many people in the world today who question the wisdom of state control of education, both higher and lower, for men and women alike. Some practical men deny the economic value of higher education, and the self-made man is inclined to worship his maker.

with some new pieces and with the music for Coach Foster's song, which made such a hit last week. It is hoped that the quartet which failed to materialize last Thursday will be on hand this morning. The rooting leaders will be present as usual and will have new stunts to propose with which the bleachers are to help defeat Ames next Saturday.

Word from Ames indicates that the team whose picture we print today is the best in years and that every man is on his mettle to defeat Nebraska. It is reported that an excursion of two hundred rooters will accompany the team, and if this is the case Nebraska may expect a hard fight not merely on the gridiron, but on the bleachers as well. Two hundred men in a bunch will make enough noise to keep Ne-ter endurance than has been displayed in the games so far.

Basketball is well under way and prospects are encouraging. Of the old men who are in school and are expected to make the team are: Moser, captain; the Bell brothers, Burruss, Hoar, Kraze, and Walsh. There are, in all, about twenty-five candidates cut. Hagensick, whose work as forward has been so valuable to the team for the past two years or more, is not back in the University this year.

Faculty Act as Pallbearers.

University professors attended the funeral of Mrs. Howell, mother of Adjunct Professor Howell, yesterday in a body. The following acted as pallbearers: Professors Sherman, Bessey, Fogg, Fossler, and Barber.

said Cornhuskers—a feat which has not been accomplished on Nebraska Field since the Minnesota game in 1900.

SPLENDID PROGRAM.

Convocation Goes to Be Well Entertained in November.

Although the Convocation program for November has not yet been completed, it is quite probable that, judging from the speakers already engaged, it will be one of the best Convocation months of the year. The following men have promised to speak to University students during the month: Hon. W. J. Bryan, Hon. Norris Brown, Hon. W. T. Thompson, and Professor Caldwell.

of physical force and physical science have crowded upon each other so that an announcement of new inventions is hailed with almost child-like faith. Compare the marvels of steam power, Fulton's steamboat making five miles an hour with an ocean liner crossing the Atlantic in five days; or Stevenson's steam car of 1814, with the modern locomotive.

Electricity also has wrought wonders. Now we see thru a stone wall, preserve the human voice thru a thousand miles, or project that even thru the wires. The X-ray, the phonograph, the telephone and telegraph are but devices of the human intellect striving to give expression to latent physical forces. But brain force is about to accomplish marvels equal to these and perhaps of greater importance. Things (Continued on page 4.)
