CYCLONES COMING

AMES TEAM EXPECTS A HARD GAME TOMORROW.

Special Correspondent Gives Inside Information—Clean Game Is Promised.

The following letter explaining the football situation at Ames and giving the record of "the Cyclones" to date, was received by the Nebraskan yesterday:

Ames, Iowa, Oct. 18.—(Special to The Nebraskan.)—Ames started the season of 1906 for the football championship of Iowa with brighter prospects than she has had for years. However, in football, as well as in other events, you never can tell till it's over. Early season dope for several years has favored Ames, yet when it came to a test she was compelled to take second place.

Critical examination of the work done by the "Cyclones" in their early season games indicates that they still have a lot to learn about the game, and also discloses weaknesses which, unless overcome, may prove vital at critical times.

In the game with Cornell, Ames had really no opposition at all, and the game simply resolved itself into a procession, Ames piling up a total of 85 points. The game merely showed the weakness of Cornell.

With Coe, which had a fast back field and fast ends, the Aggies struck a different proposition. Altho Ames was victorious, Coe was dangerous at times and had they had a good drop-kicker would doubtless have scored.

Des Moines College discovered that she could puncture the Ames line occasionally, and used Tiberghin to batter the Ames tackles. Des Moines gains were not consistent, however, and the "Cyclones" line always held at critical times.

The game with Morningside was the hardest yet played this season. Ames won by a score of 32 to 0. The Sioux City bunch put up a fighting defense and were hard to start. At times the Ames backs were thrown for losses and Morningside was within kicking distance of the Ames goal two or three times.

Captain Jaenson at quarter adds materially to the strength of the team and is always in the game. Reppert, Ames' big fullback, who has been out for some time, will probably be in the game Saturday. He is a strong defensive player and should aid in keeping the Cornhuskers away from the Aggie's goal.

"Sioux" Jones and McElhiney have been doing good work this year again, and are counted upon to gain against the Nebraska line. The Ames line is fairly heavy and fast and ought to do the "stonewall" act unless Nebraska has some hard line plungers.

The Cornhuskers defeated Ames last year in the mud, and no doubt expect to trim the "Cyclones" again.

IOWA STATE COLLEGE (AMES)

VS.
NEBRASKA

SATURDAY, OCT. 20, 3:30 P. M.

On the other hand, Ames expects to do as well as Drake did, and should do better if dope counts for anything. Which ever way the game goes, Ames may be depended upon to play clean, sportsmanlike ball and to uphold the good name of the Cardinal and Gold. Ames has seldom had a cleaner, whiter opponent than the University of Nebraska, and looks forward to a clean, hard game.

THE PRIZE SONG.

H. C. Robertson, '09, Wins Reserved Seats for Ames Game.

Manager Eager has announced the winner in the football song contest inaugurated last week. H. C. Robertson, '09, is the lucky individual and his verses are printed below.

The contest demanded that words be set to the popular air "Cheyenne" and that one complete stanza should be submitted. Two reserved seat tickets for Saturday's game were offered for the successful words and the decision was left to the band.

Tune: "Cheyenne."

Out here in old Nebraska long ago
Where we all live and 'bout it like to blow,
The total scores against the team were "O."

Nebraska surely showed them how to go.
We don't have old Bender to depend upon,
Cortelyou and Benedict are gone,

But Gil and Cook can show the goods to dear old Ames;
They'll keep right on a winning-all the games.

The boys aren't shy, they're bound to do or die;
We'll help you win, boys, if you'll work like sin.

Oh—Oh—Oh—

Fos—ter, Fos—ter,

We want more touchdowns.

There's no hope for Ames here,

And after the game is over

We'll all join in shouting in glee
For Nebraska and victory.

—H. C. ROBERTSON, '09.

GLEE CLUB ENLARGED.

Good Club Assured—More Tenors and Instrumentalists Wanted.

At the third try-out of Glee Club men, last night, it was decided to increase the size of the club. Such excellent material has shown up in the basses that many of them will be retained and more tenors will be added to balance the club.

Anyone who can sing tenor is urged to put in his application before Monday and try out for the new places. Application blanks may be found at the general office in charge of Registrar Clark. Ask for them there.

Some excellent mandolin and guitar men have been selected, but more are desired and any one who plays either of these instruments stands a good show of making the club.

Director Gillespie announces that with the present line-up of men Nebraska will have the finest Glee and Mandolin Club in the history of the school.

A GOOD MEETING

FOOTBALL RALLY PROVES IMMENSE SUCCESS.

Enthusiasm Evident—Clever Speeches and Excellent Music—Rooting Best This Year.

Yesterday morning witnessed one of the best football rallies ever held at Nebraska. The enthusiasm, the speeches, the music, left nothing to be desired and the half-hour assigned for the affair seemed all too short.

After the usual prelude of yells, the band opened (the "devotional exercises," as Dean Pound called them) with a spirited selection. Dean Pound then started the speech-making with a characteristic talk. He brought forward as a justification for presiding over the football rallies the fact that he was the oldest living rooter on the campus, even taking precedence of Dr. Bolton. Further, he spoke very optimistically of the team and its work, declaring that he had noticed in the past that the teams which kept struggling along, just barely winning each game, have been in the end Nebraska's most successful teams. Closing with a spirited exhortation to both rooters and "rooteresses" to do their duty, he declared his intention to be in the middle of the rooting section next Saturday and to yell until he could not talk above a whisper.

Assistant Coach Stuart was immediately called on and greeted with great enthusiasm. Having declared his intention to talk to the "girls as well as the fellows," Mr. Stuart told the crowd of the urgent need for their support next Saturday. He said the team is going up against the fastest and huskiest bunch of Iowa farmers that has ever come into Nebraska. In getting ready for this game the boys have worked as hard and faithfully as any team he has ever seen and now it is up to the rooters to do their part of the hard work. He charged them all to follow Dr. Pound's example and yell till they couldn't whisper, and then take potash tablets and yell some more.

Following Coach Stuart, Dr. Pound introduced a new member in the ranks of faculty football enthusiasts in the person of Dr. Maxey, the new professor in the College of Law. Dr. Maxey declared his football enthusiasm to be of the highest order. He said he would rather miss a wedding than a football rally any day (that, in fact, he missed his own wedding to go to a football game). Further, he declared it to be an easy question as to how the Ames game will come out, for Ames would "surely be licked." He also made a plea for the bleachers and bleacheresses (with apologies to Dr. Pound) to do their duty and help Nebraska win a glorious victory.

The jubilation closed with more music from the band.
