ON TO CHICAGO.

One week from Saturday next the Cornhuskers meet Chicago on the latter's field. Nebraska has the best opportunity she is likely to get in a long time "to do something" to Chicago. After the Gopher victory last Saturday, Nebraska, in view of her excellent showing at Minneapolis, is rated even by the Maroons as a worthy foe.

Nebraska made a splendid fight at Minneapolis, but she should do better still at Chicago. There were almost no Nebraska rooters at Minneapolis. There should be legions of them at Chicago. Manager Eager has announced that one of the railroads has offered a $6.00 rate provided 300 accept at once. At least 1,000 students should avail themselves of this unusual opportunity to visit Chicago and cheer the Cornhuskers in their battle on Marshall Field.

The tickets are now on sale—at of our cities. Yet we cannot escape this conclusion.

Thefts have been reported in the last few days from places where outsiders cannot intrude. That these cases were not accidents has been proved by the fact that no garments have been left to take the place of the appropriated articles. The case is conclusive.

We have no platitudes to offer, nor will we hurl invective against the offenders. We feel that such a course could accomplish little good. What advice we have is very simple. If every student interested—and we believe that all are interested—will keep his eyes open for misdemeanors of this kind, the criminals can be caught and punished. One example of this sort will be worth an infinite amount of sermonizing.

You can help to right the wrong. Keep your eyes open.

Whew!

A scribe of the West Virginia Athenaeum has produced the following effusion in defense of the study of astronomy:

"The glowing nebulae, the collision of planets and stars, the eternal rotating mass which fills the infiniteness of space, meteorites, and 'shooting stars,' which like 'lawless vagabonds,' cross and recross the paths of rotating worlds, have not yet awakened our University from its indifferent slumber. The metamorphosis of the entire cosmos; the infinite substance of the universe in endless repetition of eternal time, and the periodic 'dance of the worlds' are facts which do not admit of exact comprehension. They demand the thoughts of every student and man, and life is extremely incomplete in its fullness without some knowledge of the universe which surrounds and embraces us, and of which we are but a transitory phase."

We are free to admit that our friend may be right. We are just a trifle dazed, that's all.

"Kensington" O'coats, representing authentic styles and the best fabrics.

Most men like to be reasonably sure that the style of their O'coat is correct and that the fabrics insure good service. There's no question about the up-to-dateness of the fit, nor the fabric of Kensington Coats. For several seasons they have borne the reputation of superior style and quality and today are being worn by many a man who formerly went to a custom tailor. Just now we call particular attention to our immense showing of stylish Coats at

ONCE MORE.

There is no indication of the approach of winter at the University that is so sure and so much to be relied upon as the advent of the sneak thief in the corridors and cloak rooms of the various buildings on the campus. Year after year an epidemic of petty thievery has appeared at this season and year after year has the Nebraskan hurled its anathemas at the unknown criminals.

The duty has come to us again and we confess we have no liking for the task. It is a blow to our ideas and ideals of University manhood and womanhood, to be forced into the belief that there are among us men and women who will lower themselves to the plane of petty criminals, those persons, mentally perverted or deficient, that haunt the vice-ridden sections

TRIP POSTPONED.

Inclement Weather Makes Class Visit to Beatrice Inadvisable.

Owing to the inclement weather of yesterday, the excursion to the Home of the Feeble Minded at Beatrice, which was to have been taken by Dr. Bolton's class in Mental Pathology this morning, has been postponed for a week.

The institution to be visited is at some distance from Beatrice and when the roads are muddy, transportation for any number of persons is rather difficult and not at all pleasant. The trip to Beatrice by this class is an annual affair and the special rate that is obtained is open to any student who is interested in mental diseases, whether he is a member of Dr. Bolton's class or not.

Mr. J. M. Fetherolf, who has been in the United States forest service in Utah, addressed the different Forestry classes yesterday.
