DR. BAYLEY SPEAKS

DENVER MAN DELIVERS AN INTERESTING ADDRESS.

Problem of Twentieth Century Man—Increasing Interdependence—Religion a Social Necessity.

Dr. Frank T. Bayley of Denver spoke on a very interesting topic at Convocation yesterday morning, his subject being, "What Will the Twentieth Century Man Do With His Dynamite?" The subject is not quite so startling when we think that the word "dynamite" comes from the Greek word which means "power." There is a vast difference in the equipment of the men of this century from that of all others. This is no longer the age of the bludgeon, bow and blunderbuss, when men killed their enemies and did it quickly.

In the business world we see man's power manifest in corporations and trusts, where a few men have an amazing amount of power in their hands. But whether dealing with capital or labor, it all depends upon a man's disposition whether he uses his power for weal or woe. Disposition in turn depends upon character, thus his dynamite alone is a blind Titan.

The question arises "How can we get along with each other?" Since we are all so mutually dependent and this interdependence is constantly increasing, we find ourselves all interwoven into one common life. Stop for a moment and consider how many people were connected either directly or indirectly with just the breakfast which we had this morning. From the social question, the art of living together, comes the moral question and because disposition grows out of character, it becomes a religious question. Some may say education will settle all this trouble. But a man may be a great linguist and be a liar, too. He may be able to speak six languages fluently and not tell the truth in any of them. The forger is the man who is skillful with his hands. Thus the most dangerous men are the intellectual ones with evil dispositions, and not the boorish fellow who knows very little. Some one has said that nine-tenths of the mischief done was thru intelligence.

Religion has an important part in the lives of intelligent, thoughtful people. Cecil Rhodes says that religion is one of the mainstays of good government. Character must be rooted and grounded in powers invisible and eternal. We should serve the Holy God to whom we and the whole universe belong, then sweet will be His love and companionship. Religion is, therefore, a social necessity.

The Freshman officers will hold an informal reception Friday afternoon from 5 to 6 in Union Hall to all members of the class. The object of the reception is to get the Freshmen better acquainted. A Source Book of Greek History.

Dr. Fling, head of the European History department, is reading the last proof for a book on "Sources of Greek History" which he has been preparing for several years. This book, which is for high schools and colleges will come out within a month, and will be the only source book of Greek History printed in English.

Workmen on the Museum building promise to have everything completed by December 1. Wiring, plumbing and plastering are finished and oak work on three floors is completed.

THE FIRST BATTLE

FRESHMEN AND SOPHOMORES TO CONTEST TODAY.

Warm Game Is Assured—Effect of the New Rules in Doubt—Line Up of the Opposing Teams.

The Freshman will battle against the Sophomores on the gridiron this afternoon in the first interclass game of the season. The contest is called for 2 o'clock.

This will be the first clash of Nebraska class teams under the revised football rules and much interest is manifested as to what effect the new code will have upon the play of the younger athletes. The first year men hope that the new rules will favor them and enable them to keep their opponents from making the necessary yards in the required downs. If they can withstand the line plunges of the Sophomores they are confident that their fleet quarter and backs will be able to get away for a touchdown or two.

The second year men will rely chiefly on straight football to gain a victory. Realizing the danger of the forward pass when used by other than thoroly drilled men, they will resort to no trick plays unless forced to do so in order to make their gains.

Both elevens have been going thru stiff practise for the last three weeks and each captain claims that his team is in excellent shape. Of the two teams the Freshmen have done the most strenuous general work in preparation for the game. Out on the campus twice each day the resolute "Freshies" have tired themselves out in getting into shape.

At a lively class meeting yesterday they decided to attend the game en masse and root vigorously.

The teams will line up as follows:

Sophomores.	Freshmen.
Kading.....	l. g.
Johnson.....	r. t.
Meyer.....	r. e.
Krough.....	c.
