A FINE SPREAD.

Y. M. C. A. Dinner a Tremendous Success Socially and Financially.

Two hundred men sat down to the chicken dinner cooked by Dr. B. L. Paine and served by the social committee of the University Y. M. C. A. In the banquet hall of St. Paul's church last Saturday evening. For a half an hour previous to the spread an informal songfest was held in the parlors of the church and when dinner was announced an unusual degree of good fellowship was manifest thruout the crowd.

The dinner was another evidence of the thoroughness of Dr. Paine's culinary education, and to say that his chicken pot pie, with its biscuits and gravy, and all the other features of the menu, were heartily enjoyed is to put it very mildly indeed.

After the final course had been removed a short program was rendered by a male quartet composed of University men and by Mr. Ireland in his capacity of "whistling bard." All of the selections given were received with the greatest enthusiasm and it was with considerable difficulty that the serious purpose of the banquet was broached.

Mr. Jorgenson introduced Mr. Mayne of the city Y. M. C. A. as the speaker of the evening, and the latter proceeded to outline in brief fashion the duties and accomplishments of a college Y. M. C. A. as the speaker of the evening, and the latter proceeded to outline in brief fashion the duties and accomplishments of a college Y. M. C. A. Subscription blanks were distributed among the crowd and an appeal for funds for the work of our college organization was made. The appeal met with a hearty response and over $300 was pledged in a very short time. This insures sufficient money to meet the budget of the Association for this year and Y. F. C. A. officials are correspondingly elated.

The diners dispersed at about eight o'clock, enthusiastic over the success of the evening. Many requests for another supper of similar nature in the near future were made to the committee and it is believed that the demand will be granted soon after the Christmas holidays.

THE MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR.

Prof. Wallace Talks Interestingly of Shakespeare's Play.

Prof. Wallace gave an instructive talk on the "Merry Wives of Windsor" at the special convocation yesterday afternoon. Many people, he said, ask in all seriousness as Artemus Ward jokingly does, "How many wives did Mr. Windsor have?" The scene is laid in the little town of Windsor near Windsor Castle on the outskirts of London. "Wives," as used in the title, means simply "women," altho some of them were married.

This is the only play written almost wholly in prose, and is based upon the social life of his own time. It was written at the command of Queen Elizabeth to see how Falstaff would act under the impulse of love; and since it was written in a fortnight shows numerous evidences of haste. It was probably written about 1600 but was not printed until over a hundred years later. Shakespeare assumes that we are acquainted with the characters which are transferred from Henry IV.

There are seven students from this University attending Princeton. Six are taking graduate work and the other one is registered in the scientific course.
