THE NEBRASKAN STAFF.

Three more issues of the Daily Nebraskan will complete the work of the editorial staff of the paper for the present semester. The beginning of the second semester, moreover, will find a newly organized staff in charge, and in consideration of this fact, the editor of the Nebraskan desires to express his appreciation of the services rendered by his assistants whose names have not been publicly announced.

The announcement of the working staff of the Nebraskan has been deferred from time to time owing to changes which have been necessitated in its personnel, but at a time when a sweeping change is about to take effect, it seems right that credit should be given where credit is due.

a part, of the semester which has gone. The staff of the Daily Nebraskan as it exists today, aside from those members whose names appear regularly in the heading of this column, consists of the following members:

Associate Editors.
Convocation Miss Laura A. Roades
Athletics Hugh W. Craig
Departmental Sydney G. Evans
Exchange Clyde E. Elliott

Reporters.
Athletics Earnest H. Johnson
Departmental Albert E. Long
News Stuart P. Dobbs
Engineering Arthur G. Schreiber
Law Louis A. Gregory

Besides those mentioned above, the editor wishes to thank also several former members of the staff who were compelled for various reasons to give up their work with the Nebraskan before the expiration of the semester. These are: Miss Fay Hartley and A. W. Aron in departmental work; A. C. Hough and H. A. Robbins from the College of law; and Miller Benedict in the general news gathering department.

A number of the present staff will continue the work into the next semester and we are glad to be able to congratulate the new editor-in-chief upon the able assistance he will doubtless receive at their hands.

A WONDERFUL RECORD.

Yale Basketball Varsity Makes an Exceptional Trip.

Yale's basketball team recently completed the most successful basketball trip in the history of Yale athletics. The team traveled 3,500 miles and played fourteen games, winning twelve and losing two. The defeats were by the Kansas City Athletic Club team and the Buchtel College team at Akron, Ohio. The Yale men contend that they were not given a fair deal by the officials at Akron, but admit that they

The work of the Daily Nebraskan is not the sinecure that it might appear to be to the casual observer who receives his paper daily and knows not whence it comes nor how it is put together. Behind the columns which he reads so glibly there has been work which has demanded time and effort in no small amount. There has been in operation a machine which is far from perfect but which has done the best it could.

The demands of a college daily are exceedingly exacting. There must be, in spite of accident, sudden death, or unmitigated monotony, sufficient copy regularly turned in to make a paper full. Regardless of the pressure of studies, examinations, or the other "hardships" of a college course, the paper must be forthcoming and if there is no news, there must be news just the same. For this reason, then does the editor take this occasion to throw bouquets at the assistants who have served him so faithfully for all, or for were outplayed at Kansas City. However, they turned around the next day and won from the same team, putting up a superior all around game. The work of the team was characterized by splendid team-play, altho the men as individuals all did excellent work. The total number of points scored by Yale was 448, by her opponents, 267.
