FINIS.

With this issue the Daily Nebraskan suspends publication for the first semester of the present school year. In accordance with the custom of previous years and in respect to the demands of final examinations upon the members of its staff, the Nebraskan will not resume publication until the Tuesday of the week which opens the new semester, at which time the personnel of the working force of the paper will be considerably changed.

In leaving the Nebraskan it is the desire of the editor-in-chief and his two chief assistants, all of whom have resigned to take effect today, to thank the University public for the support which has made possible the degree of success which the Nebraskan has attained during the semester. There entirely without experience and the organization which it brings. Hereafter there will be at least a nucleus in each succeeding year about which to build a staff which shall be thoroly capable of assuming intelligently the duties it has to perform.

And so, with apologies for what we have not been able to do, with gratitude for what we have been enabled to accomplish, the present Nebraskan staff makes its parting bow and silently withdraws.

THE MANAGER TALKS.

The business management of the Daily Nebraskan during the past semester also wishes to thank the subscribers of the paper for their liberal support. The paper has enjoyed an unusually prosperous season and this is largely due to the satisfaction that the advertisers have found in their patronage of our columns.

The financial success of any paper depends upon the co-operation of subscriber and advertiser and we hope that during the coming semester members of the student body will bear this important fact in mind when they make their purchases down town.

The Nebraskan wishes to carry its subscription list over for the balance of the year, and all subscribers will continue to receive their papers unless we are notified to discontinue.

W. E. Standeven, Manager.

Valuable New Work Placed on Shelves of University Library.

The University Library has secured a volume, just published, that will be the standard source for information on where the portrait of any given individual may be found. This index of portraits is sent out by the publishing board of the American Library Association at a very reasonable price, owing to the fact that the volume is published in the government printing office at Washington. Over 6,200 vol-has been a constant contribution of ideas and news items from all portions of the University and much helpful criticism has been given by students and by members of the faculty.

The Nebraskan has made enemies during the semester. We trust these individuals will not hold their wrath against the new editors who are to carry the burden of the paper for the second part of the year. We believe the Nebraskan has also made some friends within the last five months. If so we hope sincerely that a transfer of that friendship be made to the newly organized staff.

The friendly interest of the University public is absolutely necessary to a successful college journal and that is certainly our ideal for the Daily Nebraskan.

The paper has not been an unqualified success thruout the past semester altho we do not believe its columns have been wholly without merit. The staff at the beginning of the year was umes are referred to, as well as hundreds of magazines. Between 35,000 and 45,000 persons are noted.

George Washington and Queen Victoria lead in the list of those having the most published portraits, more than two and one-half pages of index being devoted to each. Chancellor Andrews has seven portraits. This work which has been sadly wanted for years, was not actually undertaken until ten years ago.

EVENTS OF FORMER YEARS.

Happenings of other days as recorded in The Nebraskan:

Two Years Ago Today.

The basket-ball team had returned from its northern trip with a record of five games to its credit.
