CORNHUSKERS TRIUMPH

TROUNCE KANSAS BASKET BALL TEAM TO TUNE OF THIRTY-TWO TO NINETEEN.

Visiting Team Clearly Outclassed—Swept Off Their Feet in First Half—A Brilliant Game.

Nebraska administered a decisive defeat last Saturday night to her old-time rival, Kansas, evening up in some measure for the trouncing she received at the hands of the Jayhawkers last year. Kansas was decidedly outclassed and in fact was hardly in the game, save on tries for goal from fouls during the first half. The Cornhuskers, however, did not play as high class a game as might have been expected of them, their work not being characterized by that precision and accuracy necessary to make their speed effective. The poor work of the Jayhawkers may be partly accounted for because of unfavorable conditions. Their train was several hours late and they barely had time to eat and dress before the game and were naturally in rather unfit condition to play in their best form. On this account and because of a dispute over the rules, in which Nebraska had to give way, the teams did not appear on the floor until nearly nine o'clock.

The game started at 9:05, Moser scoring a goal for Nebraska in the first ten seconds of play, but not before the Kansas center was put temporarily "hors de combat" by a severe blow on the nose, received in the initial melee. Play was resumed in a few minutes and a rapid succession of fouls followed, neither side scoring on the free throws ensuing. Nebraska was guarding well and Kansas was unable to get away with the ball at all, but the Cornhuskers seemed excited and missed several easy chances for field goals. Nebraska made three or four more fouls and Kansas scored on two of them. Score, Nebraska 2, Kansas 2. In the next play Walsh scored the second field goal for Nebraska and a minute later Moser threw another, the ball being taken up the field in one of the prettiest plays of the evening. Two more soon followed, making the score 10 to 2, but here Kansas scored twice on tries for goal from fouls, raising her total score to 4.

The game thruout and at this period especially was characterized by the vallant guarding of Dwight Bell. He stopped several long passes and always made things so warm for his opponent that the latter was unable to get the ball away successfully at all. Kansas was unable to show any offensive work worthy of the name, not making a single field goal during the half. Moser and Walsh threw several more for Nebraska before the gong sounded, the half ending with a score of 18 to 5 in favor of Nebraska.

The second half began with another foul by Nebraska, Kansas scoring on the throw. Following this, Kansas committed a series of fouls, Nebraska scoring on one of them. Here the Cornhuskers gave an exhibition of pretty playing, Moser and Walsh being the stars. However, the Jayhawkers were guarding better this half and it became harder for Nebraska to score. Indeed, Kansas got into the offensive game herself at this point and at last scored a field goal. Nebraska 20, Kansas 8. In the next few minutes the Cornhuskers ran up the score to 28, Kansas in the meantime getting another field goal and two free throws, making 12 in all for her. In the last few minutes of play Kansas got into the game with a vengeance, making three more field goals and getting another free throw, making their total number of points for the second half the same as Nebraska's, 14-14. The game closed a moment later, the final score being 32 to 19.

THE WOODEN SPHINX.

New Honorary Secret Political Society Exposed.

A new secret society has been formed in the Sophomore class to consist of thirty "barbs" and three frat men. The members of the new society say that it is organized purely for social purposes and to purify the ideals of the class, however its opponents insist that its object is political.

The organization is strictly honorary as its exclusiveness indicates and it is said to contain the cream of the class. Membership in the society will probably prove the most coveted of honors.

As is the custom with similar organizations, the Wooden Sphinx will hold its first initiation this evening at Robbers' Cave south of the city. Each of the members will be dropped thru an aperture in the roof of the cavern and amused and instructed by other edifying stunts.

It is the hope of all within the mystic charmed circle that none of the vulgar rabble will be so inconsiderate as to bring their profane optics to the scene of the initiation. Such an intrusion will be regarded as "rank and contemptible" by the members.

It is rumored that the Wooden Sphinx is solidly supporting S. P. Dobbs for the presidency of the class and as Dobbs has not yet denied the charge it is likely to stand against him.

COLORADO MAN SPEAKS.

Mr. Detwiler Talks to Silviculture Class.

The class in silviculture was given an unexpected treat Monday morning in the shape of a lecture by Mr. Samuel B. Detwiler, who is in the United States forest service at Colorado City. Mr. Detwiler was passing thru the city on his way to Washington, D. C., and stopped a few hours to visit with Professor Miller, who asked him to speak to the class.

"The Forests of Colorado" was the subject Mr. Detwiler chose to speak on, and he gave the class a vast store of information about these mountain forests. The class was given an idea of the planting operations in the Pike's Peak Forest Reserve and of the kind of timber that flourishes in the mountains. The speaker also dwelt on the relation of various trees to various altitudes, and showed how, as vegetation approaches timber line, the hardier species of pine crowd out the weaker.

The talk was largely impromptu, but showed the speaker to be a thoro master of his subject, and a man with a broad experience in forest reserve work.

THE CORNHUSKER

NEW ANNUAL WILL SOON BE READY FOR THE PRESS.

Many New Features in the Book—Cost Great—Will Be the "Best Yet"—Editor-in-chief Myers Talks.

Work on the first annual Cornhusker is progressing rapidly and the book will be ready for the press by the last of March. Much of the copy for the publication is now in the hands of the editors and the rest of it is expected to be turned in during the next few weeks.

The 1908 Cornhusker will probably be uniform in size with the last Sombrero, but will contain many more pages of material. Cuts of the leading University organizations and societies, with extensive write-ups will be published. Beside an enlarged "josh" department, with all the old jokes that antedate Rameses, the book will run censured cartoons of the leading characters in University life.

Mr. Herbert G. Myers, editor-in-chief of the Cornhusker, was interviewed by a representative of the Nebraskan yesterday and discoursed on the coming book as follows:

"The book will be the 'best ever,'" said Mr. Myers in beginning. "It will be a small revolution in itself, for our publication will be so much better than any annual ever put out at this institution that there will be no comparing it with the books that have gone before. We do not wish to appear egotistical, but those who are 'next' to things know that what I say is the truth.

"The artistic work of the Cornhusker will be a wonder. We have selected the cleverest ideas in the best college annuals of the country and will use them in this forthcoming book. Besides these ideas taken from other institutions, we have the leading art genius of our own school at work creating drawings and if our annual doesn't look like a Gibson prize book I am a liar. Regarding the cartoons—I must not breathe a word.

"Now, as to that josh department. Well, it will contain more new rich jokes than an up-to-date comic opera. Such jokes as 'Why does a chicken cross the road?' or 'How old is Ann?' will give a good idea of our best humor.

"The book will be well organized and arranged. Serious material will not be mixed with the lighter things. You know that other books have been a total failure in this one respect.

"This 1908 Cornhusker will cost more than any of its predecessors. We shall spend over $4,000 in getting it out and will not have even enough left to buy a square meal. In short, our book will cost more, look better, have better material, and be better than any other book that the students at this great school have published."

Manager A. E. Burr of the Cornhusker would not talk for publication.
