COMPANY SMOKER.

B Company Men Enjoy a Social Evening at D. U. House.
Company B took the initiative step this year in arousing company enthusiasm by holding a smoker at the D. U. house last Saturday night. The smoker was given by the non-coms under the management of Arthur Jones, president of the company.
The company turned out almost to a man and the evening was beguiled with various antic amusements, such as the blindfold combat, the Company Q spell-down, and the guess-who-paddle game. Refreshments of various kinds were supplied in abundance.
At about eleven o'clock the house was called to order and speeches were called for. Captain McWilliams, Lieutenant Needham, Sergeant Guthrie, and "Windy" Houseworth were in turn called upon, and all spoke at length on Company B's prospects of winning the cup at competitive drill this year. The men readily grasped the enthusiasm and cheered lustily for the speakers and for Company B.
As a point of business the men voted to give a banquet some time this spring, at which time an effort will be made to have present as many as possible of the ex-officers of the company as well as any old Company B men who can attend.

Dr. Bessey lately received a pamphlet published by the United States Department of Agriculture, on the control of Texas root-rot of cotton. The work is edited by Mr. C. L. Shear, who graduated in '97, and Mr. George F. Miles of the class of 1903. Both were students in the department of Botany.

Prof. B. Shimek of Iowa, whose specialty is paleontology, accompanied Professor Barbour to the Gilder Mound near Florence, Nebr., to obtain some specimens of Loess fossils, which will enable him to form his opinion as to the age in which the remains of the Nebraska Loess man lived.

Byron Yoder, business manager of The Nebraskan, has delayed his return from the east until next week. From Urbana, Illinois, where he participated in the Nebraska-Illinois debate, he went to his home at Topeka, Indiana, to spend several days with his parents.

Miss Ethel Pope, '06, of St. Joseph, Mo., and Miss Lillian Cole, '07, of Plattsmouth are Lincoln visitors this week.
