

IT IS AN ART TO BE WELL DRESSED

A Man May Have at His Disposal all the Clothing and Furnishings in the Country and yet not be Well Dressed

A rightly dressed man is the man who knows how to combine his attire in such a way that Hat, Suit, Vest, Shirt, Tie, etc., harmonize and produce the most stylish effect. "The Sterling Clothiers" have made a study of the art of dressing and a look at their line of Furnishings will convince you of their unsurpassed taste in selecting the conventional array for the right man.

PROFESSOR SEARS SPEAKS.

Gives Talk to Engineering Society. Resolutions by Society.

At the regular meeting of the Engineering Society Wednesday night Professor Sears gave a very interesting lecture, describing the new work that is being done by the Burlington railroad, between Lincoln and Seward. His talk was illustrated by several excellent lantern slides, showing pictures of the work in progress, bridges, steam-shovels and work trains, and the new concrete round-house.

After the completion of Mr. Sear's talk, the society adopted the following resolution:

For the past two weeks the whole University has been agitated with concern lest the engineering department should be refused, at the hands of the legislature, the new building which the further efficiency of that department demanded. Every friend of the University has sympathized with the institution in this struggle; but from the very nature of the task, the actual presentation of the University's side before the legislature has fallen on a few men. At the last, these men were successful, because they held on and worked when weaker men would have quit.

When the building seemed lost, and other friends of the University were expressing their disappointment in their different ways, one man in particular stayed with the game and finally won. In this contest for his school, Charles R. Richards displayed those qualities which have won for him the admiration and respect of every student of the University that has come in contact with him.

As engineers who have no prospect of attending classes in the new building, we are filled with a realization of
