CONCERNING ROOTERS.

In a communication received at the office of the Nebraskan from an alumnus who, although out of school, does not intend to permit his interest to wain, the necessity of organized rooting was mentioned. The time is ripe now to begin the movement inasmuch as the first game of the season is to be played next Saturday. Of course, it is true that Peru is not one of the big games, but it certainly offers an opportunity for the rooting squad to get busy. It might be possible that more effective and systematic rooting be realized this season if an early start is made, and every bit of talent is present at all the games. There can be no discounting the important part the rooting squad plays and for this reason no effort should be spared by the supporters of Nebraska football team in developing plenty of the right kind of noise. It is not primarily essential that we outdo the other fellows in respect to volume, but we surely do want to surpass them in general efficiency. For instance, the well known yell of Kansas University does not depend especially upon impression of his fellow students. Such incidents are especially regrettable since they arise from carelessness in the most part and could be avoided.

the number of people giving it, in fact it is rather more effective if the number is not too great. It would be a good thing if a search for new ideas be inaugurated at once, not that some of the old yells and other stunts are no longer useful, but we might be able to improve our present strong collection.

A BAD HABIT.

A freshman student came into this office yesterday with a story of what is sometimes called misplaced confidence. It seems that last Monday a fellow student, a stranger to him, borrowed his fountain pen, but in the confusion of the crowd in Administration Hall they lost track of each other and the pen is minus the original owner. It is entirely unlikely that the intent of the borrower was not to return the pen, but the incident has served to give this freshman a wrong
