Engineering Notes.

Prof. Viers, who was on the faculty of the University in the Applied Mechanics department last year, is a practicing mechanical engineer, in the employment of a concern at Colorado Springs which manufactures pumping and mining machinery.

Clark E. Mickey, M. E., '08, is setting up an Olsen torsion testing machine recently purchased by the Applied Mechanics department. The machine, which has a capacity of 50,000 inch-pounds and cost some $450, will all materially to the facilities of the material-testing laboratory, which is already equipped with two "Universal" testers for tensile, compressive and bending tests. The power for the new machine is taken by line shafting from the motor now used with the large Riehle universal tester. Mr. Mickey is installing the line shafting, aligning the tester, and handling the entire setting up. The machine will be ready for use next week.
