THE CHANCELLOR.

Chancellor Andrews is expected home from Europe the early part of next week to resume his work in the University. We, as students, have every reason to be proud of the fact that "Nebraska" has such a man at the helm. More than this we should rejoice that he has seen fit to remain here as long as he has and hope that the University may long continue to have his distinguished services. It is only through the untiring efforts of such men, supported by able faculties that a university can maintain a position of first rank in the educational world. We should not merely accept the good things of this world without a thought of gratitude to those who have made them possible for us, but should make an effort to contribute something along with the rest or at any rate show some appreciation.

SUBSCRIBERS.

The Nebraskan wishes to announce and at the same time to apologize on behalf of the business manager to those subscribers who have not been silent when signals are being called. Let the management brace up and show some of the same spirit by providing dressing room facilities for our visitors. A STUDENT.

Slavonic Language.

The new department of Slavonic Language and literature offers the following courses

1. Bohemian. Bohemian Grammar begun. Daily exercises in reading, writing and speaking the Bohemian language. Reader begun. Occasional. This course is intended for Freshmen and Sophomores. Five hours.

2. Bohemian Grammar completed and reviewed. Reader completed. Reading of easy Bohemian tales, poems and plays begun. Daily practice in speaking and writing. Bohemian lectures on Bohemian literature. This course is intended primarily for Freshmen and Sophomores. Five hours. Second semester.

3. Bohemian. Primarily a literary course. Erben's "Kytice Basni," Cech's "Jestrab kontra Hrdlicka," and Nemcova's "Babicka." Daily practice in writing and speaking Bohemian. Three hours first semester.

4. Bohemian. Primarily a literary course. Neruda's "Vybor Basni," Jirasek's "Filosofska Historie" and Celakovsky's "Ohlasy." Daily practice in writing and speaking the language. Second semester.

Pointers for Punters.

The following advice has been given the football candidates at Purdue:

When a student appears as a candidate for a football team, he should remember these things:

That the coach's word is law and gospel.

That the player knows less about his needs than his trainers.

That hard work, regularity and willing sacrifices are the three gridiron virtues.

That condition counts for more than pounds of flesh.

That condition is a prize that is receiving their paper regularly. The complete list of subscribers will be prepared and ready for use early next week, after which time we hope this difficulty will be avoided.

For Our Visitors.

In the past no attempt has been made to afford visiting football teams dressing room facilities between halves. It seems to be the universal custom for the visiting team to dress at their hotel. Well and good. But they certainly need some facilities between times.

As a loyal rooter I wish to protest against the present order of things which compels visitors to grasp a definite idea of Nebraska spirit while herded between halves in the shops or some obscure corner of the field.

The rooting contingent imbued with the Nebraska spirit of fair play is won by those who labor.

That victory is worth more than all a player gives up.

That there is only one time to play football, while there is much time for coming amusements.

The season is on. None of the big games have been played. At present the teams from the big colleges and universities are trampling on the practice material from the secondary schools and wondering what is going to happen later. And all this is in the line of training.

Remember, in the Nebraskan is the only place you can read the complete university bulletins. The custom of posting them in the various buildings on the campus has been stopped.

Drake and Ames meet at Des Moines on Thanksgiving day.
