Engineering Notes.

Herbert M. Crawford, E. E., 1907, writes that he has a position with the West Penn Railway Company. He is assistant to the master mechanic at Connelsville, Pa., and likes the inter-urban work.

A family letter from "The Boys," Wilkinsburg, Pa., reached Professor Morse the other day. J. M. Kryder, 1907, tells of his work in the transformer department. W. G. Hamilton, 1906, tells how he spent six months in the transformer department, working under H. C. Randall, a University man who is head of that department. Hamilton is now working on dynamo testing. Roy C. Dywer, 1907, contributes an essay on "Our Troubles," full of his characteristic wit. He tells how A. L. Harvey, 1906, is making good in the switch board design department. L. Davis, 1906, is working on induction motor winding. He states that there is a large colony of Nebraska boys, Sunday afternoons in the Park, they "generally attract attention."

News comes from the Nebraska colony at the Westinghouse works in Pittsburg that there has been a bad slump in Westinghouse stocks; that thousands of workmen have been laid off, and there is very little work being done. So far no apprentices have been discharged, but at present there is not much to do and the boys are finding it hard to get work enough to keep them busy.

W. F. Rantsma, C. E. 1907, was on the campus this week, on his way to South America. Mr. Rantsma has been in charge of hydraulic work for the American Smelting & Refining company at Ely, Nevada, and has been transferred to Lima, Peru, where he will have charge of similar hydraulic work for the same concern. This company, the largest smelting corporation in the world, is controlled by the Guggenheim interests and employment in its ranks is considered something worth while by engineers. Charles Purcell, C. E. 1906, spent a year with this company at Ely, Nevada, and is now assistant to the general manager of the company's works in Peru, with a variety of duties, considerable responsibility, and a splendid salary for so young an engineer.
