A SETTLEMENT.

Now that the "Laws" have ratified the articles of agreement presented to them by the Law, Cornhusker Conference Committee, the rest of the student body can have a sigh of relief. Many have predicted even for the beginning of this year that both parties to the controversy were fully conscious of the errors of their predecessors and would strive to avoid repeating them this year. Certainly both the Cornhusker staff and the Law Committee are to be congratulated upon their wisdom and moderation in drawing up a set of articles which so fully cover the case and give such complete satisfaction.

As the case now stands, the prospects are that the '08 Cornhusker will be a much bigger and better publication than the one of last year and that is claiming a great deal. This will be accomplished also without much additional effort on the part of the staff, because the time spent last year in getting out injunctions,

The Dormitory System.

Michigan students and faculty have become aroused over John Corbin's recent suggestion of needed dormitories at Ann Arbor, and agree in a series of interviews published in the Michigan daily, that the quadrangle system is needed. President Angell says that it cannot be installed with the present lack of funds, but agrees with president Charles Van Hise that the system is available for big universities.

"An English college," said President Angell, "might be called a 'family' with its masters supervising the students and living with them in the dormitories. It was possible for eastern colleges, which are heavily endowed, to adopt this system as used in the colleges of Oxford. At present Michigan with its small endowments and appropriations is not able to house students, since it can scarcely obtain the necessary equipment with which to educate them properly."

Professor Scott of Michigan said: "We are past the dormitory system whether for good or ill, but we might all eat together. A central hall where a great part of the students could get together three times a day and eat, especially if there were a large, pleasant room adjoining it, where the eaters could pass a few minutes in free and easy conversation before and after meals, would be a fine thing for our students both for their stomachs and their souls' sake. I have spent a good many pleasant days in Oxford and Cambridge, but my pleasantest recollections are, after all, of the eating together. Nothing has yet been discovered to take its place in university life."

Professor Claude Van Tyne of Michigan, and a number of the summer school faculty at Wisconsin, have made a study of the dormitory systems at Princeton, Yale, and Harvard and said:

Budd's $10.00 Cravenettes

I claim my coats look and wear as well as any $15.00 or $18.00 coats in town. Would like to have you come in and look at mine, and then compare quality with that of other stores—$10.00.

BUDD, $2.50 HATTER

restraining orders, etc., can this year be devoted to quite a different line of work, all of which will make the Cornhusker more nearly accomplish its purpose. Without going into the merits of the case and opening further discussion, it might be remarked that the management of this delicate matter this year and last offers a warning for future classes. It is well enough to stand for your rights, but every other consideration should not be thrown to the winds in order to accomplish this.

The last big football rally of the year will be held tomorrow. Don't fail to be present; you are needed to help defeat Ames Saturday. Don't think that there will be enough without you. Every student in the University should turn out for this occasion.

"Although the system has its disadvantages, its benefits far outnumber the few possessed by the boarding and lodging house system existing here at Ann Arbor."

He stated further that Yale, Pennsylvania and Harvard have their dormitories, which have proved a success in bringing the students together as a body. At Cornell definite plans have been made to install the system, ground being reserved for the buildings.

Welsh College Yells.

Wales is by no means disposed to bend the knee to America, according to T. P.'s Weekly. The Welsh yells are fully up to the transatlantic level. The University of North Wales has a yell something like this: "Bravo, bravissimo, ray, ray, ra o-rack! ay, ray, ra-o rock! Ray-ray ray-ray-o-rock!" Cardiff has a somewhat similar yell, at Aberystwyth the cry is "Hip-hip-hur-aher! Hip-hip-hur-aher! Hip-hip-hur-aher! With a pip and a pang, and a yip and a yang, yak, yak, yak!"
