Ames and Nebraska will clash on Nebraska Field this afternoon in what is "doped" to be the hardest struggle seen in Lincoln for a long time. Both teams are strong and are prepared to fight hard to the finish in the contest this afternoon.

The Ames team arrived at 7 o'clock last night over the Northwestern and are stopping at the Lindell hotel. All their men are in fine physical condition and Coach Williams says they are capable of playing a "great" game. They look husky and appear to be confident of winning a victory this afternoon.

The Aggies average about 172 pounds. The average weight of the back field is 160 pounds and of the line 179 pounds. Brigger, at tackle, is their heaviest line man, weighing 198 pounds, and Nelson, who probably will play guard part of the game and who weighs 165 pounds is the lightest man in the line.

The Cornhuskers held final practice for the game today at the State Farm yesterday afternoon. There was no scrimmage, the time being used in running down and catching punts and in going through a stiff signal practice. The work of the team was encouraging to "King" Cole. The men

AT PERU.

Freshmen Will Play State Normal Eleven Today.

The Freshman football team will meet the Peru Normal eleven this afternoon at Peru. The 1911 team left yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock and remained in Nebraska City last night running down to Peru this morning.

The Freshman look for a stiff game with the Normal boys and are prepared to struggle hard for victory as Peru defeated Doane last Saturday and is rated as one of the strongest minor college elevens in the state.

The Freshmen who made the trip to Peru are: Temple, Berger, Summerhalter, Williams, Benson, Turner, Elliott, Pierson, Mager, Votau, McCarthy, Hascall, Burke, George, Frank and Stutzenegger.

The team will leave Peru tonight for Nebraska City, where they will remain until tomorrow. They will reach Lincoln Sunday afternoon.

President Tucker of Dartmouth college has issued a manifesto against baseball, declaring that it has proved on account of the commercial element that accompanies it; and unless some very radical reform can be effected, it must be forbidden. This manifesto, as has been noted, was followed by the debarring from participation in future college athletics of nine members of last year's baseball team.

OPENS MONDAY.

The Work of the School of Agriculture to Begin.

Registration of students in the School of Agriculture at the State Farm begins next Monday. The work is of high school grade and the school year is of six months duration. This course is becoming very popular among boys from Nebraska farms, and the School of Agriculture is one of the most rapidly developing departments of the University.

The first class was graduated from the School of Agriculture in 1901. The enrollment last year was 429, which was an increase of a little more than twenty per cent over the previous year. Principal Davisson expects a large increase in the enrollment this year.

The equipment of the school is also being rapidly increased. Buildings now under construction at the Farm are the Woman's Building, a new stock and grain judging pavillion, and a new heating plant. A new domestic science course of high school grade is being offered this year in connection with the School of Agriculture. The University domestic science department is also to be removed to the new building at the Farm.

FRATS AT AMHERST

GREEK LETTER SOCIETIES ARE HIGHLY DEVELOPED.

They Have Good Rules for Rushing Freshmen and Are Very Popular With Members of the Faculty.

The Greek letter fraternities have been more fully developed at Amherst than at almost any other college in the country. They are not only officially recognized by the faculty, but almost all the professors are members and engage on equal terms with the students in their meetings and ceremonies and social life and show just as much interest in their progress and welfare. More than two-thirds of the students belong to fraternities and room in the chapter houses instead of the regular dormitories of the college.

Campaigns for the election of freshmen to the fraternities are carried on under rules agreed to by all chapters, so as to secure honorable contests. It is forbidden for a member of any fraternity to speak ill of another. He may boast as much as he likes about his own, but he cannot run down a rival. Even the anti-fraternity men have an organization and a house, and do everything that is done by the secret fraternities, even to keeping their own meetings and proceedings secret. The dormitories are given up, therefore, almost entirely to freshmen.

President Harris of Amherst speaks with enthusiasm about the usefulness of the Greek letter societies at Amherst in promoting the social life of the college and in preserving discipline. It is conducive of good morals and aids in keeping up scholarship. Whenever I hear of a young man being indifferent to his work or inclined to dissipation, I always report him to the senior members of his fraternity, who will look after him much more effectively than any member of the faculty, not only because of their individual interest, but because of fraternity pride.

"It promotes scholarship, also. There is a keen rivalry between the different fraternities for college honors, and you will hear the members boast how many they have won without referring to the individuals. It is the same in athletics; the fraternities go in for everything that counts in a college career. To strong help the weak along and when they find one of their members has special qualifications they all turn in to encourage and protect him so that he can make the most of his opportunities.

"The social side of the fraternities is also important," continued President Harris. "The chapter houses are very different from dormitory life; the members feel pride in keeping them up and in making them centers of social interest."
