DENVER GAME.

Tomorrow is the last opportunity for those of us who do not attend the St. Louis game to see Nebraska opposed by a team with any claim to equality. It is the general feeling that even Denver will not be able to worry the victors over Colorado, Ames and Kansas, but however much ground there may be for this opinion, it is not the part of wisdom to adopt the "cock sure" attitude. It is probably true that Denver will be beaten, but that this operation will not require any effort on the part of Nebraska is entirely unlikely. We can rest assured that Denver will make the struggle of their lives to beat Nebraska and it should be remembered that they have nothing to lose and everything to gain. It would reflect no discredit upon them to be beaten by the Missouri Valley champions, but on the other hand if by any chance they should be victorious this one game would make up for all other losses of the least during the football season. There is no doubt but that this function has a worthy object and as such deserves the consideration asked for by the committee.

MEDIC NOTES.

Dr. Christie Retires From Faculty of the College.

Dr. W. H. Christie, for the past seventeen years professor of materia medica and therapeutics, has been forced, because of falling health, to retire from the faculty of the college of medicine. Dr. Christie has been in poor health for some time but not until recently has he been compelled to limit his work which has been very extensive. He is an able lecturer and an authority on his subject. His contributions to medicine are many and valuable.

He has always been a friend to the students—always taking a keen interest in their welfare. To use his own expression he says, "I love the boys and it is hard and very trying to me to be forced to retire."

Dr. Christie holds a high place in the minds of his pupils and associates who regret very much to see him retire from the faculty.

Dr. B. W. Christie, U. of N., '1898, and O. M. C., '01, an instructor in pediatrics in the college of medicine and R. C. Christie, U. of N., '07, a junior medic, are sons of Dr. W. H. Christie.

Dr. R. J. Midgely has Dr. Christie's classes in therapeutics at present.

Dr. Midgely is a graduate of McGill University, Montreal, and also spent several years in Vienna in post graduate work.

Dr. F. S. Owen, professor of laryngology and rhinology left yesterday for New York city where he expects to spend about a month visiting eastern specialists in laryngology and rhinology.

Your EYESIGHT

The old saying, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," is still true. Eighty per cent of all nervousness, headache, granulated eyelids, weak eyes, watery eyes, cross eyes, styes, and many other so-called diseases are due to eye strain, without noticeable loss of vision. We remove the cause, Nature does the rest. EXAMINATION FREE.

season. The rooters should come prepared to give the team all the support possible not primarily because they need it but because their achievements this season warrant such and nothing else.

CORNHUSKER BANQUET.

The date for the Cornhusker banquet has been announced as Saturday evening, December 14. The committee having this in charge have requested that no dates be set for other University functions which will conflict with the above. For the benefit of those to whom the Cornhusker banquet as a part of our University life is not clearly understood the following explanation is given. The Cornhusker banquet is given in honor of the football team as a final closing tribute to the season. It is without profit to anyone but is the result of a feeling that the students of the University deemed it incumbent upon them to entertain the team once a the recent Chicago contest, is proficient in many branches of sport besides the pigskin game. Capron, whose seven drop kicks have made all the points scored by his team this season, is also a sprinter, hurdler, jumper, shot putter, hammer and discus thrower, baseball and basket-ball player, and all-around athletic champion at the Gopher school.
