SATURDAY'S GAME.

Last Saturday Nebraska's football team gave a fine exhibition of what "King" Cole has accomplished at open football. This was the first opportunity that has been given the students of the University to see for themselves that the forward pass and on-side kick were really available and not mere myths. No one has any complaint to make, but on the contrary the feeling is general that the development of Nebraska's football team is as complete in all departments of the game as could be wished by even the most zealous supporter. Throughout the season it has been evident to the local enthusiasts that Nebraska was once more possessed of a team thoroughly versed in the old style game, where it takes good men and true to stand for the punishment sure

CORNHUSKER PICTURES.

The editor of the Cornhusker has been sending out notices to members of the Senior and Junior classes requesting them to report at Townsend's at once and have pictures taken. These requests should be met by prompt compliance on the part of each recipient and the action requested should not be put off from day to day until it finally becomes too late. It is regarded as of first importance that the picture of every member of the upper classes be in this year's Cornhusker, and in order to get this part of the work out of the way early and give the staff an opportunity for other lines of work this work is started early. Don't handicap the staff by imposing a hardship upon them which is unnecessary if not even inexcusable.

Frat Pins.

The new pins of the debating fraternity have been received and are being worn by the members. They resemble the Phi Beta Kappa pins and are considered to be very pretty. The fraternity is composed of men who have demonstrated their ability by winning places on the University debating team. The members of this year's debating teams will not become members until after the debates this year.

Harvard Debaters.

It is being proposed to institute the same system of debating in Harvard that is now in force in Nebraska and other western schools. It is planned to have the two debates in which Harvard is engaged held upon the same evening and on the same question, Harvard having opposite sides, however, in each debate. The advantage of this plan lies in the economy of effort secured by using the same to be meted out and now we are equally certain that the new open game, with all its numerous possibilities for spectacular plays, is also a part of its equipment. The game Saturday was doubtless uninteresting to many because of the evident superiority of Nebraska, but an injustice is done Denver's team by this very fact. Denver played a losing game, conscious all the time that they were opposed by a team which according to scores and games played, was much stronger than themselves. Furthermore, Nebraska, contrary to their hopes and expectations, went into the game with all the spirit and dash that characterized the Ames and Kansas games. All this tended to dishearten and discourage them. Denver did not play such a poor game, but Nebraska played an almost perfect one and the result was that the spectators left the game convinced that Denver did not play at all, which is contrary to the facts.

question for two debates and allowing the men on the teams to concentrate their effort on it, instead of being obliged to start afresh on a second debate as soon as the first is over. The practice debates can be held between the two university teams, since both will be prepared on the same question, and the arguments of both sides can be strengthened by having them undergo actual trial.

Every one come representing his or her fad. It matters not if you be Senior or Freshman, come to the affair with your fad. If it be Teddy Bears, bring a Teddy Bear. If it be toll, bring your pick-ax. Hide not your ingenuity and idiosyncrasies. Bring both in your fad to the Junior Fad Affair.
