THE FAIR.

The County Fair is now a thing of the past but before permitting the affair to be crowded back into oblivion a few words of commendation is certainly the due of those who assumed the responsibility and who made it a success. Judging from the very favorable reports current it undoubtedly was successful both from a financial and social point of view. The opportunities for lending a helping hand in the way of giving your individual support to worthy enterprises are unlimited but the unfortunate thing is that these opportunities are sometimes passed up. Not so in regard to this benefit for the University Y. W. C. A. upon which occasion the student body realizing that the object is worthy, gladly turn out. This function has been popular in the past and there is no reason why it should not was manifested that is a credit to the judgment and character of the agricultural students. Their work is quite apart from augmentation and public speaking as a general thing but even that being the case, the more creditable is this manifestation of a desire to avail themselves of an opportunity to broaden their experience. Unquestionably substantial benefit can not but come to the student who listens to these inter-collegiate debates with a determination to get something out of them.

Compensation.

(Received from one who "has went.")
I did not laugh at one prof's jokes,
I went and cut another;
And one assumed such dignity
My mirth I could not smother.

I always got in late for one
Ten minutes late or more;
He wanted all to hear him out
And my case made him sore.
Another one conditioned me
Because I did not plug;
Another just 'cause I forgot
The name of some rare bug.
Well, now I've flunked and I've gone home
My college days are done,
But let me tell you, college folks
I had a lot of fun. —Ex.

PASSING OF FENCE.

The fence that has helped enclose the Athletic Field on the south and west sides has been removed. The passing of the fence marks the first step in the destruction of the athletic field. Next spring ground will be broken on the gridiron for the engineering building and before next fall comes around Nebraska Field will be a thing of the past.

The Cornhusker football team will not play Bender's team at Pullman, Washington, Christmas. Several of the players do not want to make the trip and the Athletic Board does not look with favor upon the proposi-

AN EXAMPLE.

The information has reached the Nebraskan office to the effect that the students at the State Farm have engaged something over 100 tickets for the Iowa-Nebraska debate next Friday evening. There are approximately three hundred students registered for the courses in agriculture and out of that number one hundred have shown their intention to come out and hear this debate. It would seem unjust to the students registered for work on the campus, who have a better opportunity to become interested in such matters to intimate that possibly the state farm students show a livelier appreciation of the genuine importance of this work but actions speak volumes. A mass meeting was held at the state farm on Friday evening of last week and an eager interest tion.

Coach Walker of the Utah Agriculture football team is in the city. Mr. Walker had hoped to schedule a game with the Cornhuskers for the Christmas holidays, but the decision of the Athletic Board not to let the Nebraska eleven make a western trip dashed the hopes of the Utah Coach. Next year Nebraska may be able to give the Mormons a game.

Burdette G. Lewis has been appointed senior statistician of the New York public service commission. Mr. Lewis did graduate work at the Universities of Cornell and Wisconsin after his graduation from Nebraska. Previous to his present appointment he served on a committee investigating finances and financial securities of the railroads of the United States. He was recommended to his present position by his former employers.

The arches over the entrance gates were made in the shops in 1905, but were not placed at the gates until last summer. The pieces composing the arches were made by different students who were taking shop work at that time.
