THE THING TO DO.

The Cornhusker banquet held last Saturday evening at the Lindell Hotel was an entire success in every sense of the word. The attendance, while not as large as the committee had wished, was larger than at any time in the past. It is to be hoped that the popularity of this function will continue to grow until it has a place in the calendar of University events second to none. This object can be obtained only by arousing the enthusiasm and interest of the students generally. Anything less than a representative crowd of the students, while not exactly defeating the purpose, does to a great extent accomplish this very undesirable result. Freshmen should be taught in the first years of their college experience to make a decided effort to support as many time are we to sit quietly by and do nothing or even come back to school in 1908-9 with no place to hold athletic events. This is a subject worthy of the best efforts of every student, faculty member and friend of the University of Nebraska, and the present is the time to begin to do things.

The Lyric theater has a fair bill this week. Frank H. Tinney in a black-face piano act tries hard to please, "and he did." The playlet, "A Stolen Kiss," needs expurgation. Adeline Francis in character story songs would please more people if her songs were more select. Her voice is good. The Steiner acrobats do clever work and are funny.

Don't for Teachers.

Professor T. W. Nichols, superintendent of the Evanston schools in district 76, has placed the world, especially the college world, under great obligation by the rules governing teachers which he has placed in every school room. We take the liberty to present for our faculty's earnest consideration such of these rules as, with modifications made to suit changed conditions, seem to be appropriate. In all fairness to Professor Nichols, our readers must not hold him responsible for the modifications:

1. Don't forget that you would not have been called here if a better teacher than you could have been found for the money.
2. Don't smoke during class hours or swear at the failure of students to applaud.
3. Don't work by the hour. A few minutes off of either end will not displease the students. Brevity is the soul of wit.
4. Don't question students. It hurts their feelings, so let the students question you.

worthy causes as circumstances will permit and not be left to learn by experience that which, if properly put to them, would at once be conceded.

The real genuine advantage of this informal gathering of those having the interest of athletics seriously at heart is perfectly apparent to anyone who listened attentively to the toast given in the course of the evening. There was a serious tone and purpose present in each and every toast, livened by just the proper amount of wit and humor to make a combination both enjoyable and instructive.

A further point which received serious consideration at the Cornhusker Banquet was the subject uppermost in everyone's mind, namely, where will Nebraska's athletic field be, or even will there be a Nebraska field next season? The last question could be easily answered if a few more public-spirited gentlemen like Col. C. J. Bills could be interested in the subject. And this is exactly what the friends of athletics at the University must determine upon. The legislature does not meet until after the close of the next football season. In the mean-

5. Don't force your opinion upon a student. Opinions are a student's long suit and he will resent your interference.

6. Don't believe a student is ever educated because he does the thing you want done in the way you want. Imitation is not education.

7. Don't read to students. Let them read to you. They know best what will interest them.

8. Don't mark student's lessons. You can guess at his standing at the end of the semester. If you are in doubt, he will help you.

9. Don't examine or test students. They need every minute they can spare from social functions, to prepare for the next.

10. Don't suspend a student or send a note or report home. It hurts the student's feelings and might cause his parents embarrassment.

11. Don't do any crazy thing. Leave that to the student.

12. Don't reprimand a student for being behind in his studies. He has to be in order to pursue them.
