THE LOCKER ROOM.

There is more or less dissatisfaction manifested among the members of the two lower classes who are taking military science by reason of the extremely crowded condition of the locker quarters. Those to whom the situation is familiar know that part of the basement of the Gymnasium has recently been fitted up as a locker room, in which the cadets change uniforms. The fact that this change was made is not subject to criticism, but the fact that the space given over for this purpose is entirely inadequate and results in serious inconvenience to the cadets deserves some consideration. Some action should be taken to give more room or to lessen the number should do is to provide suitable and wholly adequate quarters for the cadets. It would not cost any very large sum and would purchase at one and the same time the gratitude of the cadets, and that, which sooner or later will appear an absolute necessity, viz., enough lockers for all arranged in a fashion that will afford the required room.

The faculty gymnasium class which has been arranged for 5 o'clock on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, has met with some trouble in getting the use of the chapel floor at that hour owing to the changes made for Mrs. Raymond's class on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from the old of cadets who at any one time are obliged to use this locker room. This offers serious difficulties in view of the fact that in many cases the element of time must be considered. Just before the five o'clock period the locker room is crowded to such a degree that it is almost impossible for a late arrival to obtain access to his locker. He must either wait until the crowd thins out or push and thrust his fellows aside. If he follows the first mentioned line of conduct he is quite likely to be demerited for being late to formation, and in the second case he brings down upon himself the active displeasure of those upon whom he treads. The locker room presents a very lively animated scene at the beginning of the hour, but at the end of the period when the two or three hundred cadets, dismissed at the same time, rush down to lay aside their uniforms and put on their ordinary civilian dress, the picture resembles a line smash. It is next to impossible to preach moderate haste to a bunch of hungry boys at 6 o'clock, inasmuch as each and every one is thinking only of hurrying home and of nothing else. What the University schedule of Monday Wednesday and Friday at 5 o'clock. Unless some arrangements can be made to accommodate both classes the faculty class in gymnasium work will be necessarily abandoned.
