THE SUMMER SESSION.

The bulletin of the Teachers' Session of the University of Nebraska to be held next summer has just been received from the press and is ready for distribution among those to whom this matter is of interest. For the benefit of those to whose notice this matter has not been brought the following statement of the purpose and scope of the Summer Session is quoted from the bulletin above mentioned:

"The Teachers' Session of the University of Nebraska is organized for the purpose of serving the teachers of the state at a time when they are free from regular professional duties. With reference to this aim the faculty has been selected with due regard to successful experience in teaching as well as broad academic preparation.

"A complete set of courses for teachers who are preparing for examinations for the professional certificate and for those who are preparing to teach pedagogy in the high school, is offered under the supervision of Inspector A. A. Reed, associate director of the session.

"The demand for teachers proficient in manual training, domestic science, agriculture, and physical education is so great at present that ample provision has been made for these subjects. The equipment of the University makes it possible to offer courses of special value in these branches.

"The broader cultural needs of teachers will be met in a number of ways. A daily convocation will be held at which subjects of general interest and general educational topics will be discussed by speakers of special qualifications. Four courses of special lectures will be given on Saturday mornings, open to all who have registered. Five educational excursions, in charge of experts, have been arranged in order to demonstrate the feasibility of carefully planned field work.

"Teachers who wish to devote only a portion of their time to professional studies, will find available a large number of collegiate courses directly related to their work."

The above statement in a general way brings out the important features of the session, particulars of which can be obtained from a careful perusal of the bulletin, which is available at the office of the Registrar. The director of the session, Paul Henry Grummann, A. M., no doubt could be applied to for any information relative to this work which is not made clear by the bulletin. Any student who expects to take up this line of work should begin to make his arrangements accordingly.

Senior Class Pin.

The revised '08 class pin has been received by the pin committee and a class meeting will be called Thursday for the purpose of the formal acceptance of the pin. All seniors are requested either to attend the class meeting or see the pin, which will be worn by one of the committee in the Library Wednesday and Thursday, and the orders will be taken Friday.

A. H. MILLER, Chairman.

With the opening of the second semester Dr. Baumgartner, Ph. D., University of Chicago, will take charge of the German classes formerly conducted by the late Professor Hrbek. Since the death of Professor Hrbek the department has been searching for someone to fill his place. For this purpose Professor Fossler attended the meeting of the National Association of Modern Languages at Columbus, Ohio. It was here that he met Professor Baumgartner. The department feels that it may be congratulated on the addition to its faculty.

The Department of Rhetoric has frequent calls for members of its classes who can entertain by reading. Last Saturday evening Miss Bonnie Adams responded to a request made by a lecture bureau and appeared at Malcolm, where she furnished the entertainment. She was accompanied by Miss Linderman, who played the piano for the numbers requiring a musical setting.

A special boxing class will meet at the Armory at 7:30 Thursday evening. F. R. Wedge, ex-welterweight champion of the west, now a student at this University, will conduct the class. Jack Best, the veteran trainer, will superintend the work. The size of the class will be limited. Students are requested to hand in their names to Jack Best at once.

Amherst College is to receive $106,000 by the will of D. Willis James, the philanthropist, who was left $1,000,000 to be divided among colleges, churches and charitable organizations.

The Harvard Medical School

With the completion of the new buildings, which were dedicated September 25th, 1906, this school now has facilities and equipment for teaching and research in the various branches of medicine probably unequaled in this country. Of the five buildings, four are devoted entirely to laboratory teaching and research. Numerous hospitals afford abundant opportunities for clinical instruction in medicine and surgery.

The studies of the fourth year are wholly elective; they include laboratory subjects, general medicine, general surgery and the special clinical branches.

The next school year extends from October 1, 1908, to June 24, 1909.
