IS HARVEY THE POPULAR CHOICE?

POLL OF 100 STUDENTS GIVES HIM MAJORITY FOR CAPTAIN.

The Daily Nebraskan Seeks to Get a Representative Preference for Leader of 1908 Eleven.

The failure of the fourteen "N" men to elect a captain for the 1908 football team, as shown by the canvass of the second ballot at the meeting of the athletic board, Monday night, led the Daily Nebraskan to take a poll of one hundred representative students of the University to get an expression on the popular choice of a leader for next fall's eleven. The students were asked to give their preference of the three men—Harvey, Matters and Cook—who are eligible for the captaincy with the following result:

Candidate	Votes
Harvey	59
Matters	26
Cook	15

If this vote is taken as representative of the sentiment of the student body, James B. Harvey is the popular choice of the University for captain of the 1908 football team. The poll, which gives Harvey a majority of nine over the combined votes of the other two men, was taken indiscriminately among fraternity and non-fraternity men. Harvey, who is a "barb," received many votes from the "frat" men, while the other two candidates who are fraternity men, were given few votes by the "barbs."

FIVE SUSPENDED.

Kidnappers of MacDonald Are Dismissed From University.

President Weaverling of the class of 1911 and four other freshmen who helped kidnap Master of Ceremonies MacDonald of the Sophomore hop committee Sunday night were suspended from the University yesterday by Chancellor Andrews. The order of suspension was issued after the freshmen had been asked to return MacDonald and had refused. Unless the Sophomore officer is returned soon the kidnappers will be permanently suspended.

Warrants for the arrest of Weaverling and the other conspirators were issued late yesterday afternoon and the police were making a search for those students last night, but had found none of them when this article was written.

Friends of the freshmen kidnappers are making a strong effort to find MacDonald and secure his release before the foolish first year men are expelled.

Y. M. C. A. SOCIALS.

Informal Gatherings Will Be Held in the Temple.

Since moving into the new quarters in the Temple, the Y. M. C. A. has had at its disposal conveniences which make it possible to carry out plans for a larger work, impossible before. The social committee has felt a need of an opportunity for University men of classes to meet informally on an equal footing at frequent occasions and also wishes to do something towards developing University spirit. To meet this need they plan to have "something doing" every Saturday evening from 8 to 10. These gatherings will be entirely informal so men may be free to come and go as they please. No effort will be spared to make these occasions as homelike as possible. There will be singing, college songs, spinning yarns about the grate fire and a feed of some sort. The first of these gatherings is to be Saturday, January 18. All University men are cordially invited to drop in.

The membership contest, which closed before the holidays, was intended to bring the membership to 500. At its close the number of members was 510. The membership committee has set its goal at 600 for the year.

Since the closing of the Christmas vacation, the cast of "You Never Can Tell" have been rehearsing nearly every evening, and under the superintendence of Miss Howell have been giving the nishing touches to Shaw's play. There will be a dress rehearsal on Friday evening. All the new scenery will be in the theater by that time, and all the properties will be in place.

On Saturday afternoon a trial performance is to be given to which all members of the Dramatic Club are invited. They also have the privilege of inviting a couple of friends to attend this performance.

The program will commence at 8:15. The cast, arranged in the order of their appearance is as follows:

Dolly Clandon . . . Miss Bonnie Adams
Mr. Valentine . . . Mr. C. Geo. Riedel
The Parlor Maid . . . Miss Laura Fisher
Philip Clandon . . . Mr. Guy Montgomery
Mrs. Clandon . . . Miss Ruth Bailey
Gloria Clandon . . . Miss Rachael Carns
Mr. Fergus Crampton . . .
. . . . . Mr. Walter Houseworth

William, the waiter . . . . .
. . . . . Mr. Alden Bumsstead
Mr. Bohun . . . . . Mr. Robert Elliot
Second Walter . . . Mr. Howard Rushton

The first scene is a dentist's operating room, where the twins, Dolly and Philip Clandon, start the plot by inviting Mr. Valentine to lunch with them, after an acquaintance of two minutes. They also insist on his bringing his landlord to lunch.

In the second scene, they are having a luncheon party on the terrace of the Marine hotel, where a raging scene is witnessed in finding that the invited stranger is the father of the twins and the wife of Mrs. Clandon, who has left her husband, since her advanced opinions conflict with his stern regard for respectable appearances. The troublesome meeting is continually calmed down by the serene walter who always appears at the right time to make his philosophy soothe the boiling passions, and in order to bring in a little sentiment, Mr. Valentine makes love and proposes to Gloria, "The woman of the twentieth century" on strictly scientific principles, gathered by an experience of twelve years as a student of "The Duel of Sex."

In the third act it is found that Mr. Crampton has started legal proceedings to get back the custody of his children, and Mr. Valentine also explains the new method of love-making. In the last act, everyone is assembled to straighten the trouble. They come waltzing in at different times, from the dance in the garden. Mr. Bohun, the lawyer, in stentorian tones brings the meeting to order, after squelching (Continued on page four.)
