If any one thinks there was graft in connection with the Senior Masquerade please examine the report of the chairman and explain how it happened.

The University of Nebraska is fifth in point of enrollment among the state universities of the country. It stands eighth in total income and thirteenth in salaries of professors. When institutions like Kansas, Colorado, California, Aransas and Michigan pay higher salaries than we do something is wrong. Wait until the next generation gets control—and that won't be very long either.

Nebraska ought to congratulate itself on the addition of Dean Fordyce to the faculty of the University. Here learned that institutions of higher education are not for the rich alone. An extended period of prosperity, however, has somewhat concealed these self-reliant and ambitious students. But the day of the self-made student is not over. It is young people like these who will constitute the backbone of the citizenship of the future, young people who have equipped themselves for the temptations and opportunities and duties of life. All honor to the man or woman who has the character to forego the pleasures of younger days and earn his own way by persevering, hard work.

Y. M. C. A. Convention.

The University of Nebraska was represented at the twenty-eighth annual State Y. M. C. A. convention at Norfolk by thirteen delegates and the School of Agriculture by five delegates. The total representation by delegates from the various city, railroad and student associations was over two hundred thus making the largest convention within the last ten years. During the day the convention met in the Methodist church and the evening sessions were held in the opera house in order to furnish accommodations for citizens who wished to attend.

In addition to transacting the usual amount of routine business, a number of splendid addresses were delivered by the following men:

- President Turner, of Hastings College, "The Young Man, of Our Square."
- Dr. J. W. Conley, of Omaha, on "The Call of the Young Man."
- Dr. Frank L. Loveland, of Omaha, on "The Art of Seeing Things."
- Mr. A. J. Elliott, international student Y. M. C. A. secretary for the middle West on, "The Association and the Student."
- Saturday evening a half-hour of the is a man who appreciates the opportunity to develop a college of education in this institution and with such foresight, he possesses the ability and determination to realize his hopes.

Support your basket-ball team by going to the games. If you don't dance come Friday night and show the management that a game can be carried on without a dance. It has been decided not to have a dance after the game Friday night. Kansas has won eight games since their defeat at the hands of the Cornhuskers. The Jayhawkers had about seven hundred students at the Kansas-Nebraska game. Why can't we do that well at the last home game of the season?

The best and bravest story of college life is that of the self-made man. Of the crop of men turned out of Harvard, Yale, Princeton and every state institution the country over, from one-fifth to one-third are men who have practically earned their entire expenses through school. These men for their labor and sacrifice and unconquerable pluck deserve the applause and sympathy of good people everywhere. Citizens have fairly program was given to the student delegates who used it by giving their respective college songs and yells. Only three of the schools represented had songs to the same tune as our Scarlet and Cream.

The delegates were entertained by the Norfolk citizens, but they all took dinner and supper together in one of the large halls of the city. The business men served these two meals in a very creditable manner.

The convention aroused much enthusiasm in the city and at the close eighteen of the leading business men met to plan and organize a campaign to secure funds for the erection of a $50,000 Y. M. C. A. building.

The Nebraska delegates will give reports of the convention at the regular Wednesday meeting of the Y. M. C. A. All University men are invited to come out.

Ames in Basket-Ball.

Ames is branching out in athletics by adding basket-ball to their list of teams. They play their first game Thursday night against Kansas University. This is just the night before Nebraska meets the Jayhawkers.

The Harvard Medical School

With the completion of the new buildings, which were dedicated September 25th, 1906, this school now has facilities and equipment for teaching and research in the various branches of medicine probably unequalled in this country. Of the five buildings, four are devoted entirely to laboratory teaching and research. Numerous hospitals afford abundant opportunities for clinical instruction in medicine and surgery.
