viduals. His concern therefore is with the things that affect the human breed.

"As a first step in the direction of his ideal Mr. Shaw became a socialist. We need not be shocked at this, however. The Fabian variety of socialism is a wild, patient kind that is increasingly exemplified in this country by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Bryan. Mr. Shaw detests what he calls our anarchical scramble for money. He believes in equality as the only possible permanent basis of social organization.

"Out of his social attitude have arisen, remotely or directly, all his plays. Out of it came 'Mrs. Warren's Profession,' 'The Widow's Houses,' and others. These represent the somber, more unpleasant side of Mr. Shaw's work. Its brightest side, with the brilliant repartee, the fine, cutting comedy we have seen represented in 'You Never Can Tell.' Between the two extremes lie the mass of his plays.

"The point for us to remember is that Bernard Shaw is a man working fearlessly and with prodigious energy for ends that are more than personal—that he is concerned with the welfare of humanity—that he cares for his art only as it serves the social end."

Wednesday Evening Meeting.

Tonight, at the regular Y. M. C. A. men's Wednesday evening meeting, Mr. Fredericks and the secretary, Mr. De Kinderen will contribute the report of the state convention at Norfolk. Last week Mr. Temple, Mr. Cherrington and Mr. Jorgensen gave a very interesting and instructive report of the convention. The one tonight will, without a doubt, be of interest and worth the time of any student. Drop around and spend forty minutes with us. Meeting commences at 6:50 and lasts until 7:30.

Prior to the meeting, college songs are sung about the piano.

The annual election of officers for the Y. W. C. A. will take place Wednesday noon in the rooms of the association in the Temple. All members are urged to attend the noon meeting and be present at the election.

The Harvard Medical School

With the completion of the new buildings, which were dedicated September 25th, 1906, this school now has facilities and equipment for teaching and research in the various branches of medicine probably unequalled in this country. Of the five buildings, four are devoted entirely to laboratory teaching and research. Numerous hospitals afford abundant opportunities for clinical instruction in medicine and surgery.

COURSE FOR THE DEGREE OF M. D.

A four years' course, open to bachelors of arts, literature, philosophy or science, and to persons of equivalent standing, leads to the degree of M. D. The studies of the fourth year are wholly elective; they include laboratory subjects, general medicine, general surgery and the special clinical branches.

The next school year extends from October 1, 1908, to June 24, 1909. The diploma of University of Nebraska is accepted for admission. For detailed announcement and catalogue, address
