The Glee Club had its picture taken on th steps of the Temple Monday.

Harry Walters, '09, has again registered in the engineering school, after an absence of six weeks.

"Sunbonnets Are Coming." So says the poster for the Union Literary Society. A "girls' program" will be given Friday evening, and it is evident from the poster that some surprises are in store. An interesting program is assured.

The rejuvenated Daily Californian seems to be in a fair way to regain its former financial standing. Berkeley merchants are giving the publication liberal support in the way of advertising.

The Observatory has just received from Dr. Joel Stebbins, a former student of astronomy at the university, a copy of his work on Photometric Observations of Double Stars, made with the twelve-inch telescope of the University of Illinois, where he is now professor of astronomy.

President Northup of Minnesota, was granted a month's absence at the meeting of the executive committee of the board of regents recently. The president has been having serious trouble with his throat, and is obliged to have a rest from his duties. He is considering a trip south, during his leave of absence.

Miss Howell of the Department of Elocution will give a recital of "Joan of Arc" in the Temple March 14th, under the auspices of the Dramatic Club. "Joan of Arc" was introduced in the East last year by Sothern and Marlowe and was received favorably by the public. The presentation by Miss Howell is looked forward to with much interest.

President Elliot of Harvard will take a trip through the cities and towns of the Middle West in April, lecturing on "Municipal Government by Commission" at Indianapolis, Urbana, Chicago, Evanston, St. Louis, Des Moines, Columbus, Dayton and Cleveland. He will be entertained by college presidents in the places visited and by Harvard clubs. Mrs. Elliot will accompany him.

The faculty of Northwestern University has recently voted that no freshman may join a fraternity until after he has secured credit for at least ten semester hours of good grade. This means practically that no freshmen are allowed to join fraternities during the first semester. The regulation goes into effect September, 1908.

Much comment is arising concerning the appointment of a negro student to the Rhodes scholarship at Oxford. The officials of the Rhodes trust have a stereotyped response to all inquiries arriving from America in regard to the subject. With the authority of the full bench of trustees, Secretary Charles W. Boyd says: "Alain Lorraine Locke has been appointed by the selection committee of Pennsylvania Rhodes trustees, and their agents in England have the greatest respect for American opinion and never interfere on principle with the decision of American selection boards." Mr. Locke made a good reputation as a worker at Harvard and has gone to Oxford with the ambition of fitting himself for taking a prominent part in Booker T. Washington's work.
