

THE DAILY NEBRASKAN

LAW AS A CAREER.

money. The men who engage in intellectual life are the ones who carve out history. Men whose sole claim to distinction rests on their possession of money are not long remembered.

"I have said that the law has been the leading profession in the past. It will also lead in the future. A new era is now being entered upon in which we must decide the rights of many men as compared with the rights of a few. This question will be fought out in the next fifty years. In the end the lawyers will settle the question.

"One other thought is sufficient. It is the observation of all who reflect on the subject that one of the essentials of the successful lawyer is his integrity. The lawyer must maintain as high a standard as any other profession, the ministry not excepted. He must have not only moral, but intellectual integrity. This last means that not even to himself must he acknowledge a wrong thought which may influence his reasoning.

"I think that the lawyer will in the future hold an even greater position than he has in the past. History shows that, whenever military genius has not been required, the legal hero has fought the critical battles of the world. Therefore I invite you who are now studying for the law to a profession where all your brilliance may go, where your influence for good is greater than in any other profession, and where, if you have integrity and capacity, no career offers a greater reward."

All members are requested to come around and voice their opinion.

Joe Der Kinderen will be there to answer questions and give instructions.

Mayne to Talk.

At the regular Wednesday evening meeting in the Y. M. C. A. rooms tonight, Mr. C. M. Mayne of the City Association will give a short talk.

Mr. Mayne needs no introduction to the men of the University and his talk will without a doubt be of both profit and interest to those who attend. If you have forty minutes to spare, come around tonight at 6:50. Everybody welcome.

Palladian Play.

Stadium at Syracuse University.

Syracuse University will soon have its stadium completed, the finest athletic arena in America—and about the only one of its kind. Berkeley's theatrical amphitheater loses its importance in the college world. The dimensions of the stadium are: 650 by 475 feet; with a seating capacity of 40,000. The field is sodded and has an elaborate system of subsurface drainage. A quarter-mile cinder track extends around the field, and on one side a 220-yard straight-away course passes out of the arena through tunnels at either end. The original idea of the stadium was Chancellor James R. Day's. Our own chancellor might have similar ideas, if he had a John D. Archbold to furnish the wherewithal for its construction. The affair, which is constructed of steel reinforced concrete, has in its uncompleted condition cost already half a million. That puts it out of our reach. We may, however, have just as good athletic teams as Syracuse. Money can't make muscle and health, and little inconveniences encountered on our athletic field need not stop us.

Senior Play.

There will be an important meeting of the Senior Play Committee Friday at 5:00 p. m. in U. 106. Every member must be present.

The student council at the University of Michigan will try all cases of petty offense which generally fall under the police jurisdiction where students are involved. Heretofore if a student was arrested he was heavily fined. A number of fellows clubbed together, paid the fine, and there was anything but the true idea of punishment. Under the new plan the offender will see his position in a more serious light and press notoriety will be avoided.

The girls at the University of Washington recently took part in a torch-light parade through the streets of Seattle. The demonstration resulted from the accusation that the students had no college spirit.

The regents and faculty of the University of Wisconsin are considering the idea of abolishing intercollegiate athletics. They are meeting with strong opposition on the part of the students.

A Big "C" Society has been organized at California for the purpose of promoting the interests of athletics at the university and in the secondary schools of that section.

Chicago University is considering the plan of abolishing the freshman and sophomore classes, allowing only the two upper classes to be organized.

Regular meeting of the Uni. Chem. Club, Wednesday evening, March 5th, at 7:30 o'clock sharp. All out.

Freshman class dues at Columbia are $3 for the year.

Princeton has 218,457 bound volumes in her library.

Copper Mines to Resume.

John D. Ryan, managing director of the Amalgamated Copper company, Butte, Mont., announced that the mines of the company would resume and that fires would be lit in the great Washoe smelters at Anaconda. The order means the employment of a full force in the various mines and at the smelters.
