 proposition is the one to be adopted, I am not decided.

"The matter of a change in the election system was suggested by myself at a meeting of a committee of the board. I thought some reform desirable in order to bring about a greater interest in athletic matters, but I had no idea of stirring up such a hornet's nest as has developed.

"I have told the committee that any plan which they might devise furthering the creation of greater interest would be acceptable to me. But I do not think that the election should be thrown open to all students, regardless of their attitude toward athletics. I do not know what action I would take on the plan as it now stands."

Elocution.

"The Man of Destiny," by George Bernard Shaw, was presented Wednesday morning to Rhetoric 36 by several members of the class. The cast was as follows:

Napoleon Bonaparte.....Aldis Hibner
 A Strange Lady.....Neva Hibner
 A Lieutenant.....H. P. Letton
 Guiseppa, innkeeper.....S. A. Erskine
 The scene of the plot was in northern Italy and the time, two days after the battle of Lodi, 1796. The play was in one act and was very cleverly presented.

Union Program.

The newly elected officers of the Union Society will give a novel program Friday evening. Just what the nature of this program will be no one seems to know, but if Buster Brown is an authority, it will be worth your while to be present. A "perfect fit" is guaranteed and Buster predicts that even the "Elite" will be surpassed. He also assures us that Tige will be there. However, there will be but one performance, so come early and get a good seat.
