Entered at the postoffice at Lincoln, Nebraska, as second-class mail matter under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

There is something rotten in the state of the Law School. The administration of the University of Nebraska has for the last few years been run on the plan of student self-government as far as possible. Under this plan no student has been called upon to testify against another, although the students have in certain cases been called upon to testify as to the competency of their instructors.

But this time the information was not requested; it comes as a voluntary petition signed by a number of the students of the law classes, complaining of the dean of the school.

lutely groundless and are surprised that they ever could have been led to believe the gossip that started the movement.

Aside from the ridiculous charges made on the Dean, there remains the fact that no crowd of students ought to undertake to judge the merits of their instructors. The Dean will probably manage things very well without the kind assistance of the students. They are under him to be taught and not to run the school. Nor is it their move to mix in faculty squabbles.

Editor Daily Nebraskan:

The decision of the University Athletic Board in "standing pat" on the present method of electing student members to that body would seem to indicate that the board, or at least a majority of them, propose to pursue a dictatorial policy in dealing with University athletics, regardless of the sentiments of the majority of the student body.

Further evidence of this is the fact that they have practically taken the management of interclass athletics out of the hands of the interclass committee by refusing them the use of the Armory until their constitution is ratified by the board.

Five weeks ago the president of the interclass committee submitted its constitution to the board for approval. Three weeks later it was returned without their approval and in the meantime the basketball games scheduled for the second and third Fridays in March were not played on account of the above ruling. With the returned constitution, however, came numerous suggestions which, if incorporated in it by the committee, would enable it to pass muster when presented to the board again.

The committee, after considering these "suggestions," saw that the best

The Harvard Medical School

With the completion of the new buildings, which were dedicated September 25th, 1906, this school now has facilities and equipment for teaching and research in the various branches of medicine probably unequalled in this country. Of the five buildings, four are devoted entirely to laboratory teaching and research. Numerous hospitals afford abundant opportunities for clinical instruction in medicine and surgery.

COURSE FOR THE DEGREE OF M. D.

A four years' course, open to bachelors of arts, literature, philosophy or science, and to persons of equivalent standing, leads to the degree of M. D. The studies of the fourth year are wholly elective; they include laboratory subjects, general medicine, general surgery and the special clinical branches.

The next school year extends from October 1, 1908, to June 24, 1909. The diploma of University of Nebraska is accepted for admission. For detailed announcement and catalogue, address

This is more than self-government. If the students were right it is too bad that the movement should have to start with them. But it should require very serious grievances to provoke any such petition from the students.

It would seem impossible that anyone who knew Dean Costigan could unprejudicedly charge him with incompetency. His ability is indisputable. What then is the cause of all this excitement that is doing more toward the injury to the Law School than any weak instructor could do? There are always dissatisfied students in any school who, because of some imaginary personal injury, are willing to criticize the members of the faculty. The best men have their enemies among the students. Some of the men who are on this petition are the same malcontents that signed a petition two years ago against Dean Pound. Added to these men there are many who signed on the spur of the moment and who have since removed their names or wanted to, but were afraid of being scoffed for turning coat. These men have investigated the charges and find them absoway to incorporate them was to adopt a new constitution, and fearing that they could not clothe it in language that would suit the board, they moved to ask that body to draw up a constitution governing interclass athletic contests. A representative of the board assured them that such a document would be ready in three days. That was March 23rd. Two weeks have elapsed and yet no constitution is forthcoming. Is it the intention of the board to thus kill interclass athletics?

It is not too late to play the remaining basket-ball games, but what will be done in regard to interclass baseball?
