SOAKED BY RAIN.

Skies indulge in Sport at the Cadets' Expense.
 May 28.—It rained
 CAMP ROSCOT POUND, Nebraska City, May 28.—It rained, it rained hard, it rained steadily. In fact the only redeeming feature of the whole affair was that it did not last as long as it might have. At three o'clock yesterday morning the cadets were aroused from their sleep or other occupations by the rude blast of the oncoming storm. Tents, the sides of which had been raised for comfort, were hurriedly staked down. A few of the wise ones hastily constructed diverting ditches so that the water would not flow down the slope into their habitations. But those who did this were few. There were very many indeed who woke a little later to find that they were lying in from one to three inches of water, or, if it was not this bad, that their beds were thoroughly soaked.

The rain continued in torrents for two hours and a half. It beat down upon the tents with almost fearful vigor. Residents of the town say that the storm was the most severe of the season. At times there was a vivid accompaniment of lightning. Fortunately nearly all of the tents in use by the battalion are Sibley army tents and were fully capable of withstanding the driving storm. In a few instances where old tents were used the rain came through the canvas and wet the occupants.

In the morning the scene was for some time a dreary one. First call sounded at 5:40, at which time the rain was just ceasing. The sleepy cadets turned out of their damp quarters to find disappointment awaiting them without, for although the rain had ceased the sky was thickly overcast. Within a few minutes the companies were assembled before their tents for setting-up exercises—something which was not relished as much as it might have been under different circumstances. The twenty-five amateur soldiers who had been thrown into the guard house during the night for various infractions of rules were set to work digging trenches and cleaning up camp. They were kept hard at work for a great part of the morning and it is safe to say that some of them will be exceedingly careful about laying themselves liable to "K. B." duty again.

The guard house, in fact, seemed undeservedly popular for the first night in camp. Several men were caught by guardsmen in the act of running the lines after time was up and were lodged in the guard tent for the night. About midnight mysterious shots from the vicinity of three company tents caused a wholesale round-up of their occupants. A shirt-tail parade was formed on the spot and the luckless cadets were marched in scant apparel to the guardhouse.

The lines were open from 11 a. m., to 3 p. m., yesterday and a large majority of the boys sought the pleasures afforded by the town. At 4 o'clock all were put through battalion drill followed by parade. Supper call was sounded and the camp activity was over for the day, save for the marching of the vigilant sentries. Following is the program for the day:
