OCTOBER 6, 1908.

MINNESOTA-AMES.

There is one game in western football circles this week which will be watched with keen interest by Nebraska students. It is the contest scheduled for Minneapolis, Saturday, between Minnesota and Ames. From its outcome the opposition the Cornhuskers will have to face the following Saturday on Northrop field can be approximately determined. Today all the "dope" favors the Iowa Aggies.

Both Minnesota and Ames played Saturday. The former went against Lawrence, a team representing a secondary college in Wisconsin and had an exceeding hard time getting the long end of the score, which was 6 to 0. Ames met Coe, one of the smaller colleges in Iowa, but a school that usually has a pretty good football eleven, and ran up a score of thirty-four points in two short halves.

The showing made by the Gophers was a disappointment to their supporters and argues ill for them in the coming games with Ames and Nebraska. The play of the Aggies was about what had been expected—they put up a good game. Lawrence had been regarded as a practice game for the Gophers and they had expected to roll to be able to push back of the Gopher goal line for a touchdown or two. Ames is still shy of a kicker and has little hope of winning by place or drop kicking goals.

To most Nebraska students, although they would like to see the Gophers bite the dust, a victory by Minnesota would be more pleasing than one by the Aggies. If Ames wins the triumph of the Cornhuskers a week later would not mean so much as it would if Minnesota is able to pull out ahead of the Iowa team. There is little doubt that Nebraska would be unable to defeat Minnesota if Ames succeeds in turning the trick Saturday. And in that case all the glory rests with the team which wins the great game in Omaha, November 7, between Nebraska and Ames.

Next Saturday is once that Nebraska students will be pulling for Minnesota to win.

NEBRASKA STUDENT LIVES.

Frank Rush, 1907, Killed in Typhoon Off Luzon.

Frank Rush, a graduate of the engineering school in 1907, has been reported to be killed in a typhoon off the island of Luzon, Philippine Islands, where he was employed in the government engineering service. Rush, in company with an engineer named Webster was in a boat some distance from the shore when the typhoon struck them. The boat was rushed ashore, but nothing has been seen of the men and the supposition is that they lost their lives in the storm.

A search has been instituted, but apparently to no avail, although the bodies have probably been washed ashore. The accident took place Friday afternoon.

Rush will be remembered by many in the university. For about a year after graduating he was engaged in surveying work in the state, taking the examinations for the government service last spring. He entered the service and has been in the Philippines since then. Rush was a Lincoln boy, his parents residing on S street. His father is in the mail service with a run between Lincoln and Edgemont. Mrs. Rush knows nothing concerning her boy's death save a telegram received yesterday morning.

Rush was an excellent student ranking high in the engineering department and was very popular with his classmates.

Frank R. Miller is in charge of an engineering party near Spearfish, S. D., for the Homestake Mining company.

STILL SHORT SPEED

PLAY OF CORNHUSKERS IN THE SECOND GAME SLOW.

FORWARD PASS IS USED OFTEN

Results Attained in Its Use, However, Varied and Not Entirely Satisfactory to Either Coaches or Players.

In the third game of the season the Cornhuskers defeated Doane Saturday by the score of 43 to 0. The score was not nearly so decisive as the score of the Nebraska-Doane game last year—85 to 0—but there are many points in explanation of this. Last year this game took place toward the end of the season when Nebraska had profited by several weeks' of coaching and had been benefitted by the experience of several hard games. Saturday the team was still in embryo and it will be a week or ten days at least until the squad will reach the top form which it must possess if Minnesota's light is to be dimmed this season. In addition to this, Doane came here with a more formidable team than the one which faced the Cornhuskers last season. Their line was heavier and more active and their backs, especially Johnson and Hathaway, put up a classy exhibition of the game. It is safe to say that Coach Cole might make several valuable additions to his squad if he were at liberty to choose from the Doane aggregation.

Not So Very Bad.

However, judging from Saturday's game, Nebraska might fare a great deal worse in a football way than she will this year. In fact, it is probably true that she has fared considerably worse the last several years than she will fare this season. The team is still dominated by that old-time foible, slowness. With a little more speed in the bunch, the team could be made hard to beat and it is to be hoped that, during the two weeks which remain before the Minnesota game, they will acquire a goodly supply of that valuable characteristic.

In Saturday's game the regular lineup was intact only during the first fifteen minutes of play, and after that Coach Cole withdrew his veterans one by one until at the close of the game, the team was made up almost entirely of different men than those who started the game. Even while the regulars were in their positions, fast play was only occasional and they failed to pile is a hard man to stop and furnishes good interference. In the frequent exchange of punts he had the advantage over Johnson, the Doan kicker. Buck Beltzer held down the other half back position during the first half and played a fast, steady game although his forward passing was not up to his usual standard.

Forward Pass Attempted.

The forward pass was attempted frequently by the Cornhuskers Saturday, but with a variety of results. Frequently it went entirely astray, at other times, especially in the second half, Doane line men broke through and downed the quarter back before the pass could be gotten away, again when the pass was successfully passed and caught, the receiver had no interference to protect him and was downed in his tracks. As the monologist at the Majestic says, "Outside of this it was alright."

"Pip" Cooke officiated at quarter back and displayed individual speed but failed to instill much of it into the team. He pulled off one sensational run for a touchdown but was called back on account of having failed to cross the line of scrimmage five yards outside of the center. Fumbles all through the game were rife and many times Nebraska lost possession of the ball on account of them.

The Doane line was impregnable to the Cornhusker offense only once during the game, which was near the end of the first half. Nebraska had carried the ball from the center of the field to Doane's three-yard line, but here the Creteans braced and held the Cornhuskers for downs. At another time Nebraska failed to gain with the ball on her own twenty-five yard line and Birkner attempted an on-side kick. The ball struck a line man and bounded back toward Nebraska's goal. A Doane man was after it and the Cornhusker goal line was in danger of being crossed for the first time this season. However, the Doane warrior was nervous and juggled the ball. Before he could recover it and get started Louis Harte had downed him and the imminent danger was past.

Practice in Gym.

Last evening Coach Cole had the men out in the gymnasium playing basketball. It was impossible to play at Antelope Park on account of the muddy field. After playing basketball for a time the squad was taken out back of the library on the grass and given some stiff signal work. Several of the veterans failed to report for practice and their places were filled by "scrubs." "Jack" Temple played at full-back on the varsity squad. It is reported that his delinquency has been made up and that he is now eligible for the team.

With the jubilant cries of their classmates ringing in their ears and urging them on to the fight the freshmen team of Denver University succeeded in gaining the victory over the sophomores in the annual cane rush Monday afternoon. From first to last the contest was a strenuous one and when the fight ended with a shot fired by the referee, the count showed that two more freshmen hands were upon the cane than sophomore. The score was 13 to 11.

St. Louis Medics Fight.

One hundred students of the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons engaged in a class fight on the roof of the three-story building last Thursday morning.

The freshmen raised their flag on the roof of the building in retaliation for the hazing of one of their members.

The sophomores stormed the roof and tried to capture the banner. Many students narrowly escaped being hurled to the street, fifty feet below.

The appearance of the faculty ended the fight without serious injury to members of either class, but with the freshmen victorious.

The students at Princeton are somewhat agitated over the action of the faculty in employing a salaried medical attendant at the college infirmary. One man is already seriously sick at his room in town who is kept out of the infirmary because he will not give up his own doctor.

up a score of thirty or forty points without much trouble. But either the Gophers had over-rated their strength or under-rated the ability of the men from the Badger state. Nebraska students are inclined to the belief that the former was true, and that the Minnesota eleven is really weak this fall.

The Iowa Aggies in their game with Coe showed up to excellent advantage and were able to play with marked speed and agility that seldom characterizes the play of an eleven in the early season contests. They really played in mid-season form. The respective showings of the Minnesota and Ames games marks the Aggies as the victors in next Saturday's contest.

Last year Minnesota, with a much stronger eleven than it has this fall was able to defeat Ames only by a score of 8 to 0. And then the tight points were made on two drop kicks by Capron, who has since drifted out of football. The Aggies this season have nine letter men in their line-up and will be able to send all but two of these players against the Gophers. They have the same line that held Minnesota last season and two stars of the backfield that were able to tear holes in the Gopher defense. With Minnesota's line much weaker than a year ago and with the crafty Williams unable to get any new men into his team by Saturday it looks as though Ames ought True Education.

A new attempt to indicate what true education is, has been given by Professor Frank J. Miller of the University of Chicago. He attempts to make his meaning clear by propounding a list of questions. Among these are the following:

Has education given you sympathy for all good causes?

Has it made you public-spirited, so that you look beyond your own door yard and take interest in a clean city?

Have you learned the proper value of money at a time?

Has it made you a brother to the weak?

Have you learned how to make friends and keep them? Do you know how to be a friend yourself?

Can you look an honest man or pure woman straight in the eye?

Do you see anything to love in a little child?

Will a lonely dog follow you in the street?

Can you be high-minded and happy in the drugeries of life?

Can you be happy alone?

Are you good for anything to yourself?

Can you look out on the world and see anything but dollars and cents?

Can you look up to the sky at night and see beyond the stars?

up as many points against the Doanites as the scrubs did in the second half.

Starts With Rush.

The game started with a rush and a vim that promised even a larger score than last year's, but after the first touchdown nothing startling took place and the large number of spectators divided their time between dignifying the dust out of their eyes and watching an uninteresting game.

Nebraska kicked off and after two failures to gain through the varsity line Doane punted to Cooke on Nebraska's forty-yard line. From here it required just five plays for the Cornhuskers to carry the ball over for a touchdown, in less than two minutes after the game had begun. Harvey missed goal. The next touchdown required more time as the varsity had to carry the ball the entire length of the field—a march which gave the spectators the first fair glimpse of the Cornhuskers in action under favorable conditions.

It is only fair to say that "King" Cole's pupils have made rapid progress during the last week and that their play Saturday, although still far from what is to be desired, was first rate in many respects. Birkner showed up well at half back and it is safe to predict that he will make a sensational player before the season is over. He
