NEBRASKA OUTPLAYS MINNESOTA IN 0 TO 0 STRUGGLE

Great Stonewall of Cornhuskers Most Remarkable Defense in Western Football This Season

GOPHERS OUTWEIGH "KING" COLE'S PUPILS, BUT THEIR LINE PUNCTURED OFTEN FOR GAINS

Retirement of Beltzer at Close of First Half Leaves Nebraska Without Punter. Terrific Fight During Final Twenty Minutes

Nebraska's powerful football team, coached to a fine point of efficiency by "King" Cole, held the mighty Minnesota Gophers to a 0 to 0 score in two thirty minute halves of the most gruelling football at Northrup Field, Minneapolis, Saturday afternoon. Victory had been predicted by Coach Williams for his team, but the players from Nebraska proved to be better fighters than even their supporters had expected, and won from the Gophers more honors than have come to any meant victory, the Gophers, after by luck they had advanced the ball to Nebraska's three yard line, directed three plays at the Cornhusker line, but could not put the ball over for a touchdown. The line held and saved the game. But not only on the defense did Nebraska play a remarkable game. On the offense in the first half, by using the forward pass and new plays invented by "King" Cole, the Cornhuskers gained yard after yard, and at

NEBRASKA STONEWALL DEFENSE

Formed by Harvey, Chaloupka, Collins, Ewing, Harte, Frum and Johnson. Nebraska's line from end to end played one of the most wonderful defensive games ever seen on Northrup field. Every man in the line was a stone in the wall that was impregnable to the ferocious attacks of the powerful Gophers. There was not a single hole where any Gopher could sift through. There were lines, of course, during the game when Minnesota made a few small gains through the line. But there never was a line that did not allow some advance to be made through it during sixty minutes of hard fighting. Minnesota, however, never went through the Cornhusker line and broke up any plays; it never went through and blocked a kick; it never went through and hurried a Nebraska player who was making a forward pass.

Big Enthusiastic Rally held in Memorial Hall in Honor of Gridiron Heroes. Large Crowd Braves Wild Storm to be Present

The cultivation of a Nebraska spirit—powerful, all-pervading, compelling by the very majesty of its force the hearty co-operation of every student—was the inspiration of the football rally in Memorial hall yesterday afternoon. Called originally with the purpose of celebrating the splendid stand of the Nebraska team before the Gophers Saturday afternoon, the assembly was marked by a spirit of something more than mere celebration of a victory. It

In opening the rally, Professor Condra declared that its object was to construct a Nebraska spirit, not merely to celebrate a victory won by the team which needed the united backing of such a spirit. Continuing he said: "You students of Nebraska got together and gave your team a send-off last Thursday such as they deserved. You went to the station and endeavored to show them that you appreciated the sacrifices they were making

NEBRASKA'S GREAT FOOTBALL TEAM

Cornhusker team since 1901, when the score was 6 to 0 in favor of the scarlet and cream players. The superb defense put up by the Cornhuskers during the second half, in the absence of Beltzer, who had been very successful with his punts, saved the day for Nebraska. The last twenty minutes of play in the closing half were in Nebraska's territory between its twenty-five and three yard lines. On the three yard line the stonewall line of the Cornhuskers was forced to hold three times against the ferocious attack of the Minnesota giants. People who had seen the team in the Orange game did not believe the line could put up such a powerful stand. But it did and held as a wall. During the play and cheered on by a howling mob of scores of thousands for a touchdown, which would have times it seemed as though they would score. Luck, which has stuck to the Gophers for six years, however, was still with them and they were able to finally check Nebraska's dangerous approach. Nebraska's back field played together well, and kept most of the Gophers busy whenever Nebraska was on the offense. Beltzer, Burgess, Kroger, and Cooke were in the back field line-up during the first half. Beltzer's shoulder was injured so that he was forced to retire at the close of the second half. Minor taking his place. During the last five minutes of play in the first half Temple was substituted for Kroger, whose leg was hurt. Cooke played his usual good game and ran the team expertly. He chose the right plays at the right time. (Continued on Page 2)

Down on Nebraska's 2-yard line three times when the Gophers had three plays to make their distance for a touchdown the Nebraska line held as a solid buttress and Minnesota did not make an inch. For twenty minutes that line protected the Nebraska goal between the twenty and three yard lines. They put up the most gallant kind of a fight. They displayed a grit and strength that has not been seen in the West so far this year, and is not likely to be seen the rest of the season. Not all the credit of saving Nebraska's goal should be given to the line. While it did the greater share of the work, yet the men in the backfield were in the game for all they were worth. Every time the Gophers sent beads the birthplace of an avowed intention, as deafeningly voiced by eight hundred throats already hoarse with cheering, that Nebraska must and should have a spirit which would make it distinctive among western universities. From the opening words of Professor Condra to the closing cheer for the team which snatched a tie score in the face of what seemed certain defeat last Saturday, this spirit was in the air. It was voiced in the speeches of Chancellor Andrews, Professor Harboer, Professor Condra, Captain Harvey, and Coach Cole, but most of all it found expression in the tumultuous applause which greeted the remarks of these speakers, and in the roaring cheers for the defenders of the scarlet and cream.

for your school. You went there to assure them that you were back of them in this fight which they were about to make. You gave them a proper send-off. That team went up to Minneapolis and played there at Northrup Field against the mighty Gophers. It was Nebraska spirit against Gopher spirit. Neither won and yet both won. But we are not here merely to celebrate a tie score. That is what we should expect. We are here to demonstrate that there is in the University of Nebraska the beginning of a spirit which may lead to something better. We here at Nebraska are going to get together and do bigger and better things. And now I want to introduce to (Continued on Page 4)
