Visits the University.

Dr. Van Kadick, a representative of the Austrian government, was in Lincoln yesterday inspecting the state agricultural school, and also the university. While here he was the guest of Dean Ward, who became acquainted with Dr. Van Kadick while abroad on scientific work. Dean Ward gave a dinner yesterday at the Lincoln for Dr. Van Kadick, which was attended by about a dozen men who are interested in investigations of the live stock and agricultural conditions of this country. Following the dinner an informal discussion of these conditions took place. From here Dr. Van Kadick went to Iowa state college at Ames. He will make a tour of the entire country, which will require about five months, investigating forestry conditions, live stock and agriculture.

PROFESSOR JONES DISCUSSES THE OLYMPIC GAMES.

ENGLISH ARE SURE OF VICTORY

Declares Regular Systematic Campaign of Abuse is Carried on "Against" Americans and Things American.

At convocation yesterday morning Professor Jones related his experience while in London at the time of the Olympic games. He spoke in substance as follows:

"I wish I could give you a picture of the great stadium as it appeared on the day of the Marathon race from Windsor to the arena. The stadium is a great permanent structure said to be the largest in the world. In it 20,000 people were packed, while outside a great crowd clamored for admittance. The presence of the queen gave solemnity to an already inspiring occasion.

Feeling of English.

"It was confidently expected by the English that their runners would be victorious and the great crowd was intended to be a fitting climax to a great English victory. It was confidently believed that while the Americans might be good enough to compete on short distance races, that they did not have backbone enough to win on a long distance contest. The English newspapers even felt so confident of their ultimate victory that they predicted the order in which their men would finish.

"Bulletins received during the early progress of the race indicated that the English runners were in the lead, and of course the great crowd was immensely pleased. When, however, the first runner arrived on the field he was found to be an Italian. He was not really running, but was going very slowly and was wandering from side to side of the course. When he came directly opposite where I was sitting he staggered and fell flat on his back. A physician immediately came out and worked over him and in a moment raised him to his feet. He started forward but had only gone a few steps when he again fell to the ground. A crowd surged around him so that I could not see what was happening, but I afterwards learned that with an assistant on each side he had been escorted over the line.

English Give Explanations.

"The English attempted to explain why it was their runners did not win. In fact they were explaining most of the time. They said that it was a hot day and their runners were not able to endure it. They seemed to have an idea that it gets awfully hot over here and that we have grown to like such weather. One newspaper gave the real reason, however, when it said that the English runners ran without using their heads. This was the real reason. The English runners were sturdy enough, but they started out too fast and ran as if they had no sense, whatever.

400-Yard Meter Race.

"I was not able to see the 400-yard meter race, but a friend of mine who did see it told me that a fairer race was never run. This was the race that caused the most ill-feeling. I would not criticize the decision of the judges in this case, but I would criticize most severely some circumstances connected with it. The manner of giving the decision was unpardonable. An attempt was made to break up the race by pre-arranged signals. The English declared that they had expected some trick and had posted men to detect any irregularities. Personally, I am of the opinion that the Americans were entirely right in refusing to run the race again.

Much Hard Feeling.

"Much bad blood was raised by these games and the Americans were astonished by the extreme hostility which was shown. A regular systematic campaign of abuse is being carried on in England against Americans and things American. This feature is by far the most important. If the question involved was merely one of our reputation in athletics it would not be serious, for we can afford to stand on what we have done. "As soon as a person leaves America he finds that Americans are the butt of all kinds of slander and misrepresentation. This is true of other nations, as well as ours, however, and the ones most subject to this kind of things are those which are growing the fastest. The worst feature so far as our relations with England are concerned is that we are misrepresented in all things, and especially politics, as much as in athletics."

Word has been received from Mr. Calvert, of the United States geological survey, that two of his assistants, Kay, of Illinois University, and Fordyce, of Nebraska, have been forced to return home on account of illness, leaving only himself and E. F. Scheramm to complete the season's work. The entire party has suffered an attack of mountain fever.

The first carload of terra cotta for the new engineering building has arrived and is now on the job. Professor Richards says that he is greatly pleased with it and that it is just the right color and very true. Several carloads will be required for the whole building, and the only trouble is that the material which is now on hand will have to be scattered all over the building when it is put in place. Several additional masons are now engaged in putting in place all the material that it is possible to.

The College of Illinois has recently been granted a chapter in P. B. K. An initiation was held in Seattle for two Illinois men now connected with the Seattle high school. The following was the program: Toastmistress, Miss Chlberg. "A matter of Pronunciation," Miss Pierce; "History of the Order," Miss Mulholland; "The Chosen Few," Mr. Buchanan; "Significance of the Pin" Miss Post; "Greeting," Miss Melick; "Response," Mr. Luther; "The Victims," Mr. Gridle. Junior football men will meet for practice at 11 o'clock on the grass north of the library.

Miss Anny Manning Taylor closed her weeks' work among the university girls with a vesper service on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Miss Taylor talked on the Book of Philipians, pointing out the need of more practical christianity and showing plainly the great need of a more careful study of the Bible among college men and women. Her talk was illustrated with incidents from her own life, and from the lives of college girls with whom she has come in touch. The deep sincerity and quietness of Miss Taylor's address made her last meeting with our university girls the best and most impressing of all.

Mr. Warren F. Day, civil engineer '06, better known in university circles as "Pat," and now resident engineer for J. G. White & Company, Inc., at Richfield, Idaho, was tendered a surprise bachelor dinner on the evening of October 14, by his fellow workers, in honor of his approaching marriage to Miss Edith Robbins of Lincoln, on October 31. The banquet was served in the hotel parlors, the tables being formed in a letter "U," symbolizing "Unity," around which were seated his hosts, numbering thirty-two. One remarkable feature of the gathering was that nine different universities were represented. Mr. Jas. A. Green acted as toastmaster and all responses were given with an exceedingly good cheer. The host of friends of Mr. Day extended their sincere congratulations and good wishes in his becoming a benedict.
