"KING" COLE'S 1908 MODEL

WHAT IT MEANS.

Today the Daily Nebraskan is issuing an eight-page paper. It is doing this in order to properly present to its readers the record of what has happened in the university since the last issue. This could not be done in four pages; therefore, the size of the Nebraskan is doubled. This is the policy of the Daily Nebraskan. It aims to spare no effort and no expense to give the students of the university the best college daily in the county. The effort can be supplied and is supplied by the workers on the paper. But the staff cannot supply the money necessary to carry out its plans. It takes more money to get out a paper—more money to get out a good paper than a poor one. The Nebraskan needs your support. There is no joking, no lack of sincerity, in the request for additional subscriptions. The paper is being read more than ever, but the subscription list is not what it should be. YOUR money is needed if YOUR college paper is to maintain its lead in the field of university dailies.

but 2,256, while the enrollment for the present year bids fair to reach the 3,500 mark. In 1900 there were only 135 students in the agricultural school, while at the present time the enrollment is nearly 500. In 1900 the engineering department registered 460 students, while at the present time the number is well over 700. If these figures can be taken as any indication, the period during which Dr. Andrews has been at the head of the university has been one of remarkable development and prosperity.

The great advance which the university has made during the last few years is an indication that during this time a big man has been at the head of affairs. It shows that the university has lost a man who had a clear idea of what was right and who had the courage to carry out that idea.

Among those characteristics which have won for the chancellor the respect and love of all who have come to know him, probably the most important is his broadness. It is most unusual to find a man with as deep and thorough a classical training as has the chancellor, who can appreciate so fully and judge so fairly of the importance of different lines of work. It requires a man of deep insight and great courage to work into one harmonious whole the conflicting cellor will still reside in this city after his resignation. It is indeed fortunate that the chancellor will still be near, where his advice can be obtained upon questions of importance to the welfare of the university.

POWERS OPENS ART LECTURES.

Half Price for Matinee Address at Temple Today.

At the Temple theatre last evening Dr. H. H. Powers of Boston spoke before an interested audience on the artistic beauty of the ancient works of the old world. Dr. Powers has appeared before at the university and little is needed in praise of his knowledge and his treatment of his subjects. Last evening's lecture was no exception to his usual standard of excellence.

This afternoon at 3 p. m. Dr. Powers will lecture on "Art in the Home." The Nebraska Art association, under whose auspices Dr. Powers appears in Lincoln, have announced that a special matinee price of twenty-five cents per admission has been made for this single address. Tickets to the evening lectures are sold at fifty cents each. Season tickets have been placed at $1.00 for the four addresses.

formed. The Southeastern district, which already has thirteen members, will be divided into two leagues, and Ainsworth, Atkinson, Long Pine, O'Neill and Valentine compose the new Northern league.

On account of the expense it would incur and because it would necessitate what some schools would regard as too many debates, the inter-district series of team debates (among the schools winning the district championships) will be omitted, and each district championship school will send its best debater to the state championship debate on high school fete day.

New members of the league include South Omaha, Fremont, Havelock, Valentine, Chadron, Central City, Ainsworth, Atkinson, Ohlowa, Plattsmouth and Nebraska City.

A GREAT LOSS.

On last Friday evening the fact was made public that the chancellor of the University of Nebraska had resigned. It had been known for a considerable time that the condition of his health was likely at any time to make it necessary for him to withdraw from all active connection with the university, but the fact that it was anticipated, made the sorrow of those who have the welfare of the university at heart, none the less severe.

During the eight years that Chancellor Andrews has been the active head of the university this institution has had a remarkable development along every line. All the most substantial buildings on the campus have been built while the chancellor has been at the head of affairs. In 1900, when the chancellor came to the university, the total estimated value of the permanent improvements both here and at the state farm, amounted only to $550,000. At the present time the permanent improvements are valued at $1,200,000. In 1900 the total number of students in attendance was interests of a large university. Such a man is Chancellor Andrews.

During the time that he has been at the head of the University of Nebraska the chancellor has made many lecture tours throughout the country. In this way he has done more to raise the reputation of the university than any one thing which has occurred. Recognized everywhere as a man of powerful intellect it has been worth everything to the University of Nebraska to have such a man appear as its representative in educational circles.

The highest tribute that can be paid to Chancellor Andrews is the way in which he is regarded among the students of the university. Whether the chancellor takes a position opposed to that which is popular with the students or not, his word has the weight of law. The students appreciate what the chancellor has done for the university, and the feeling is everywhere of deepest regret that the time has come when he feels that he must withdraw.

It has been announced that the chan-

Dr. Powers will speak this evening on "Athens, the Shrine of Culture," and tomorrow evening he will close his series with "Venice, Queen of the Adriatic." These lectures are all under the direction of the Nebraska Art association, which will devote all profits to the purchase of pictures for the university art gallery.

SCHOOLS ADDED TO LEAGUE.

Prospects Bright for Successful High School Debates.

The first annual meeting of the Nebraska high school debating league organized last winter was attended by representatives of between forty and fifty schools Friday afternoon in the Temple. Prof. Fogg was elected president of the league and Supt. H. C. Filley, '03, of Albion, was elected secretary-treasurer.

The league empowered Prof. Fogg to appoint the directors of the leagues and to arrange the districts so that there will not be more than eight league schools in a district.

Two new district leagues were past years who are still on the list as alumni members. Noon meetings have been especially interesting.

During the world's week of prayer, November 8-15, special noon meetings will be held as follows:

Monday, Dr. H. B. Ward—"The Holiness of God—thine earlight on our hearts and the ground of our security."

Tuesday, Esther Warner—"The Holiness of God—Unfolded in His will, that is, the Word of God, the Incarnate Word and the Written Word."

Wednesday, Ida B. Vibbard, General Secretary—"The Holiness of God—Manifested in the Cross of Christ."

Thursday, Lillian Chambers—"The Holiness of God—Our stay in trial."

Friday, Mrs. F. D. Barker—"The Holiness of God—A summons to worship and glad surrender."

All young women invited to these meetings from 11:50 to 12:10 each noon.
