NOTES OF THE GAME

Nebraska's share of the gate receipts will be upwards of $3,000.

Over 7,000 enthusiasts witnessed the great struggle.

From beginning to end the game was the most spectacular ever seen on a western gridiron.

Referee Ralph Hoagland said that "SI" Lambert is the greatest fullback he has ever seen, and he has officiated all over the country.

The Deltz athletic association deserves great praise for the successful management of the game. Their share of the receipts was fifteen per cent, out of which they paid for advertising, constructing the stands and putting the field in order.

"SI" Lambert had the best of Beltzer and Minor in the kicking department, especially when punting against the wind.

The Cornhusker line was well nigh invincible in midfield but when a touchdown was needed the Ames backers were good for distance through it.

On the other hand Nebraska was able to pierce the Aggies' line for good gains almost at will.

The game abounded with kicks and forward passes and was consequently very interesting to those spectators who knew little of the game.

A stiff wind blew from the northwest throughout the contest. This accounted for the fact that all the touchdowns were made at the east end of the field.

The Cornhuskers were fortunate in winning the toss and securing the advantage of the wind to start with.

There are some who insist that last year's Ames game was more exciting than Saturday's contest because last year Ames was in the lead 9 to 6 until the last three minutes of play.

It took the Cornhuskers eighteen minutes to secure the first touchdown.

The Aggies were in almost perfect physical condition and not a change was made in their line-up during the seventy minutes of play.

Graham, who has been playing at left end for Ames, was out of the game as a result of injuries contracted in the Missouri game.

Louis Harte turned his ankle Thursday in practice and hurt it again Saturday morning, but it was so well bandaged that he was able to play the entire game.

Birkner was the only man in Nebraska's backfield who played through the whole game.

Temple went in at the beginning of the second half but was injured after about fifteen minutes of play and was replaced by Sturtznegger.

The Ames rooters were well organized and their band was a good one. The entire Ames contingent did a Larn dance around the field during the intermission.

Omaha has been after a big game for years and the success of this one practically insures the Omaha enthusiasts of an annual university game being played there.

Several penalties were inflicted upon Ames for rough playing, but this was because of the natural fierceness of play rather than because of any desire on their part to play dirty ball.

"Johnny" Johnson broke through and downed Heggen for a big loss on two different occasions when that individual was slow in getting off an attempted forward pass.

"Bill" Chaloupka played a spectacular game and was always good for a gain when entrusted with the ball.

The onside kick was a hoodoo to the Cornhuskers. It failed to work successfully a single time.

On a fake place kick Ames pulled off a forward pass which put the ball on Nebraska's 4-yard line, from where it was easily pushed over Coach Elliott's freshmen used this against the 'varsity last week and they should have been watching for it.

Toit Bentley played a great game and ran the team like a veteran. He returned punts for good distances.

Beltzer and Birkner circled the Ames ends repeatedly for substantial gains. Referee Hoagland penalized Nebraska when they tried the "peek-a-boo" on the ground that the ball passed over the line of scrimmage less than five yards from the center.

Kroger, Temple and Sturtznegger were three battering rams which the Aggies' line could not withstand.

Ewing and Frum opened up holes every time "Bill" Chaloupka was played around that side of the line.

"Sid" Collins was all over the field, making several sensational tackles after the ends had failed to penetrate the Ames interference.

Capt. Harvey and Johnson were both strong at receiving forward passes.

Pennants, yet! New ones too, Co-op. Every man on the Cornhusker line-up played a star game and no weaknesses were visible anywhere.

Manager Eager had so much money after the game that he could not get it all in his dress suit case.

At the end of the game Nebraska rooters carried the members of the winning eleven from the field on their shoulders.

Beckman Bros. Fine shoes. 1107 O street.

The Nebraska rooters had several special songs prepared for the game, and sang them before and during the game.

The Ames squad was the first to enter the grounds, but took a place against the north fence protected from the wind.

Nebraska was penalized seven times for a total of 100 yards, and Ames was

Some new posters in—Co-op.

Two minutes after the Cornhuskers appeared the Ames team trotted on the field, but had no band to lead in the cheering, as its band was on the delayed special.

The Nebraska band arrived at 2 o'clock and entering the north gate played around the field. When it passed the Nebraska rooters on the

As the Cornhuskers entered the field the entire throng rose to its feet and gave the husky college yell No. 1.

The Nebraska coaches and managers are now confident of making a clean sweep of the other games on their schedule. Kansas will be played next Saturday, but none of the Cornhuskers expect that the Jayhawkers will prove very dangerous.

The Henshaw and Rome hotels were given an awakening yesterday they will remember for some time. With the Cornhuskers at the Henshaw and the Ames team at the Rome both these hotels were filled to the limit by the followers of the two teams.

penalized eight times for a total of 100 yards.

The high stands furnished a splendid view of the field and there was not a person on the stands but could see the entire field of play.

south side it was greeted with great cheering and several university yells. The special train carrying the Ames rooters was late in arriving at the not reach Dietz park until Nebraska had scored its first touchdown.
