H. J. Weber, 1889, who is now professor of plant breeding at Cornell, has permanently presented the university with his collection of Nebraska plants. The botanical herbarium has had this collection for some time as a temporary gift, but Mr. Weber now makes the bequest permanent. It was on these plants that the catalogue of Nebraska plants issued by the department some time ago was based.

The department of botany yesterday received several books from the library of the Missouri Botanical Garden. The shipment is one of a number which have been made under an arrangement between the Missouri institution and Dr. Bessey. Whenever any student wants to use a book not in the Nebraska library, the Missouri library is called upon and sends the books. The arrangement is the result of an old friendship between Dr. Bessey and the head of the gardens. The Missouri library is unusually large and complete.

At The Play Houses

In London J. M. Barrie has been demanding that the run of "What Every Woman Knows" shall be interrupted to permit a revival of his favorite of favorites, "Peter Pan," Charles Frohman objects.

The Shuberts are again threatening to break away from the syndicate, and to indicate their strength they have issued a statement that at the present time they control twenty stars and twenty-six theaters. The stars are E. H. Sothern, Mary Mannerling.

John Magon, De Wolf, Hooper, Nazimova, Maxine Elliott, Louise Gunning Eddie Foy, Lewis Fields, Sam Bernard, James T. Powers, Emma Carus, James Young, Marguerite Clark and— and six others.

William Norris, following the failure of his latest play, "Father and Son," has succeeded R. C. Herz in "The Soul Kiss," Herz retiring on account of illness. This may bring Norris to the Colonial later in the season.

Henry Woodruff, formerly of "Brown of Harvard," made his vaudeville debut last week in one of the New York theaters managed by William Morris.

The tour of the Rogers brothers company with Max Rogers was resumed last week at York, Pa. Joseph Kane, the actor who took Gus Rogers' place previous to his fatal illness, will play opposite Max.

"The older I grow the more I am convinced that happiness is to be gotten one way, and that by being able to contribute to the happiness of others," declares Rose Stahl.

An influential playgoer in New York sent a young woman to Julian Mitchell and asked that she be given a place in Anna Held's chorus. Mitchell had the girl at rehearsal, looked her over, and decided she wouldn't do. "She has a tooth missing in front!" "Yes," said his friend, ruefully, "but aside from that she's a perfectly good girl, isn't she?"

Another addition to vaudeville is Thomas E. Sheat, he to present one act versions of "The Bells" and "The Great Adventurer," a charming Pollock melodrama.

A No. 2 "Theft" company, including Herbert Kelcey, Effie Shannon, and Charles Dalton, is playing through the southwest.

Mary Mannerling has accepted a newspaper man's play, called "Everywoman." The idea, the author says, was suggested to him by the old morality play, "Everyman," but the play is modern, one of the scenes being New Years night on Broadway.

Lee Kohlmar, the engaging young German of La Salle theater stock company, expects to be starred next season in a new play of which he is part author.

There are still several copies of Tuesday's "pink" issue which may be had at the Nebraskan office.

STEAL FOOTBALL TICKETS.

Daring Theft of Choice Pasteboards to Chicago-Cornell Game.

A daring theft of tickets for the Cornell game was perpetrated when sixty-five cardboard at $3 apiece were stolen from the ticket office in Bartlett hall, University of Chicago. The thief accomplished his purpose by sticking his fingers through the cage, edging a package of tickets over gradually until they fell on the floor. Then, when the chance came, he picked up the pasteboards and made away, and the act was not found out until the business was over for the day.

Students in the University of Indiana will get credit this year in the course in journalism for their work on the Daily Student. Editors and assistants will get two hours credit and reporters will get one hour.
