JEANNE D'ARC TO BE GIVEN.
 Professor Howell Will Present Well Known Poetic Drama.
 Professor Alice Howell, head of the elocution department of this institution, will again present Percy Mackay's well known poetic drama, "Jeanne d'Arc," before a university audience next Wednesday evening, November 18, 8 p. m., at the Temple theater. Miss Howell interpreted this selection last March under the management of the elocution department, but this time it will be given under the auspices of the ladies of the Holy Trinity church.
 Jeanne d'Arc is a dramatic poem presenting the five principal scenes of the heroine's life in as many acts. It begins with the command at the "Ladies' Tree" in Domremy:
 "Jeanne d'Arc, thy Lord hath chosen thee
 To save the land of France.
 The voice of his archangel calleth from the battle:
 Vive la France! Victorie! La France sauvee!
 Daughter of God, go forth!"
 And ends with the victory at the stake:
 "Surely she has some voice! Is she so ill?
 "Look down, St. Michael; Once again I wear
 Thine armour; Lord, I dread
 No more the flames."
"Cornhusker Pictures."
 All juniors and seniors should have their pictures taken for the "Cornhusker" at Townsend's. Those sitting before Thanksgiving will have their photographs finished in time for Christmas. Attend to this as soon as possible. A. Bentley, Business Manager.

BLACK PLAGUE COMES

HAS OBTAINED Foothold IN SAN FRANCISCO.
ENERGETIC ACTION IS NEEDED
 Plague Has Played a Large Part in Destroying the Human Race—Was a Menace Before the "Dawn of History."

At convocation yesterday morning Dean Ward of the medical school spoke on the bubonic plague and gave a brief history of the ravages of this plague in past times. Dean Ward described the recent appearance of this plague in America and related what it is necessary to do in order that it may be stamped out. His talk is in part as follows:
 "Today I wish to call attention to a number of facts which have been deliberately suppressed from the newspapers. I shall discuss the plague properly called the bubonic plague, which has played such a large part in history. It has been prevalent over the whole earth at certain periods of its existence. It seems to come suddenly at rather long intervals and has a very large degree of fatality.
Japanese Discovers Cause.
 "It was as late as 1894 that a Japanese discovered the cause of the bubonic plague. It is a form of bacteria which multiplies very rapidly. Epidemics of this plague devastated the human race before the coming of history.
 "The earliest case of the plague of which anything is known was reported by one of the historians of ancient Egypt and is described as running through the Nile valley. The plague of Athens, which occurred about 430 B. C., is recounted by Thucydides, and may possibly not have been the bubonic plague, complicated by a number of other diseases.
 "Several great periods can be distinguished in the history of the plague. The first occurred during the reign of Marcus Aurelius. The second occurred during the reign of Jus-tinian. In 542 A. D. the plague appeared in Egypt and followed the routes of commerce to other countries, arriving at Constantinople in 543. The plague reached such proportions in Constantinople that it was reported that 10,000 perished in one day. One-half of the population of the entire eastern empire perished and nearly as large a part of the population of the western empire was swept from the earth. After having run itself out the plague suddenly disappeared.

Appears in Europe.
 "In the fourteenth century the disease came into Europe from the east, probably from India, and was known as the Black Death. During the time that it ran it swept off 25,000,000 people from the earth.
 "In the seventeenth century it came again and carried off a great part of the population of London. From this time until the end of the nineteenth century it was absent from the western world.
 "The present epidemic began in China in 1892. In 1894 it was in Hongkong, by 1899 it had spread through Europe, Egypt, Brazil and Japan. In 1900 it got a foothold in San Francisco and the corruption of the city government and the timidity of the state government gave it a chance to fasten itself firmly upon the city. The record of the spread of the disease upon the Pacific coast has been kept a secret, but it has now fastened itself there and still has thirty-five years to run before it disappears. Unless in this time the American people awake to the need of exertion in this matter, they will suffer entirely too much from this cause.

comedian of "A Stubborn Cinderella" company, is a graduate of the class of 1903 of the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute. He is also a member of the Alpha Chi Sigma fraternity. In every respect Mr. Mason is today just as enthusiastic regarding college life as any freshman.
 Mr. Mason is quite an athlete and while at college played fullback on his team for four years, earning an enviable reputation for himself, not only in that game, but in field and track athletics as well. While at school Mr. Mason established an interscholastic hammer-throw record on Long Island, that has never been broken, when he hurled the 16-pound hammer 142 feet.
 Mr. Mason still follows the game of football very closely and grows enthusiastic when mention of any of the big games is made.
 "It is no longer a question of weight that counts in a game of football," says Mr. Mason. "It is the speediest and trickiest eleven that goes off the gridiron with the big end of the score nowadays."
 "Football is a fine game; it is the only sport for men with real blood in their veins." As a result of his work on the gridiron Mr. Mason today cherishes a souvenir in a damaged left shoulder, which even now he is compelled to keep bandaged most of the time, a dislocation he received when he was earning laurels on the football team.
 The Five Columbians, in a "Bit of Dresden China" are making a big hit at the Majestic this week. Their costumes are exceptionally brilliant. The Hawaiian quartet is pleasing the large number of patrons of the popular vaudeville house. Other good numbers on the program are Hallen and Fuller in "My Wife's Hero;" Miss Bessie Browning, the charming entertainer; Cladius and Scarlet in "Musical Past and Present;" Searles and George, and Alonzo Cox.
 "Honeymoon Trail," the successful musical comedy which scored for over 200 nights last year at the La Salle Theater, Chicago, is making new records on the road, with Harry Stone, the well known comedian, in the feature role. As Perkins, in that musical play, Mr. Stone is duplicating the success he made while playing the leading part in the newspaper play, "A Stolen Story," under the direction of Henry W. Savage, and later as comedian with the "Soul Kiss," with Mlle. Genee, under the management of Klaw & Erlanger.
