CHANGE CLASS COLORS

JUNIORS ADOPT BLUE AND GOLD AS CLASS EMBLEMS.

SELECT DESIGN FOR THE CAPS

Frank Wheelock is Unanimously Chosen Assistant Business Manager of the Cornhusker for the Coming Year.

The junior class held an important business meeting yesterday morning at 11:30 and a number of things of more than usual interest were discussed. On account of the intense cold rather a small number of the faithful turned out but those present made up in interest what the meeting lacked in numbers.

The annual election by the junior class of an assistant business manager of the Cornhusker took place at this meeting. Mr. Frank Wheelock was placed in nomination and his election was made unanimous without any other names being presented to the class. Mr. Wheelock will work with Mr. Bentley, the business manager, in looking after the financial success of the school book.

Change Class Colors.

It had been felt by a number of members of the class that the colors, green and white, were not good either for decorative purposes or for use in class caps. The matter was brought to a head at this meeting and after some discussion the colors were changed from green and white to blue and gold. It was contended that the original colors were adopted as more or less of a joke during the first year of the existence of the class and were never adopted with any regard for the way they would appear when actually used.

The matter which called the attention of the class to the desirability of changing the class colors was the attempt which is now being made to get a new style of class caps which will be satisfactory to all. It was declared that it was found impossible in the freshman year of the class to get caps which were good enough so that anyone dared wear them, using green and white as the colors. According to present plans the cap for the men will be similar to the "bulldog" style which is now very popular, while the cap for the girls will be a design more satisfactory to them.

Discuss New Society.

There is a movement now on foot in the junior class to organize a society of men similar to the "Innocents" in the senior class. A committee was appointed to consider the matter and will report the result of their investigation at a later meeting.

The "Innocents" have been in existence for a number of years and have built up quite a reputation for themselves during this time. At the close of each school year thirteen new members are chosen from the succeeding senior class and the selection has come to be considered as a high honor. The "Innocents" take it upon themselves to boost worthy school enterprises and have thus done a valuable work in the school.

It was expected that some action would be taken upon the matter of class pins, but as the latest designs have not yet arrived the matter was left in the hands of the committee and will be reported upon at the next meeting. Chairman Alexander of the junior prom spoke at considerable length of the plans which are being made for that event and declared that it would be entirely different from anything that has been given so far this year. He declared that an effort would be made at this dance to have present a number of prominent alumni.

Chairman Mosen of the junior informal to be given next Friday evening reported the conditions existing there and declared that all could be assured that everything about the dance would be as fine as any dance of the kind which would be given this year.

The juniors are making great plans for the big annual prom to be held next month. The men in charge of the arrangements for the dance say they will have one of the best formal functions of recent years. Special plans have been laid and the committeemen say they all will succeed.

STUDENT DIRECTORY IS OUT.

This Year's Hand Book Better Than Its Predecessors.

The student directory is on sale at the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. rooms. It contains an alphabetical list of the students of the university, the state farm and the school of music, with their addresses, and as far as possible their telephone numbers. The book also contains a list of the university organizations and their officers and a faculty directory which was omitted in last year's book. The list of the faculty is not arranged alphabetically, but in the order of rank.

The directory is a neat pocket volume, compiled and edited by the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. J. L. Thomas, '09, editor, and Elsie Mathews, '12, associate editor, compiled the copy for publication and H. R. Ball, '11, had charge of the business management. He also read the proof, making a special effort to have the book as accurate as possible. The telephone numbers would have been complete if the students had left them with the registrar as requested. Any mistakes in addresses is due to the same cause, as the date for the books was obtained from the registrar's office. The charge of five cents which is made for the books will cover about one-half the expense of printing.

STILL OFFERING FREE TICKETS.

Subscription to Nebraskan and Majestic Seat for 25 Cents.

The Daily Nebraskan is offered for the remainder of this semester for 25 cents. This price includes one free ticket to any Majestic matinee. Since the holidays the Majestic is giving a matinee each day of the week except Sunday. Subscriptions for the Nebraskan will be received at the editorial rooms in the Administration building. They may be mailed or telephoned into this office. The present offer of free matinee tickets will continue this and next week.

February Seniors.

Some of the students graduating in February have asked me concerning invitations for the mid-year commencement. Upon making inquiry at the registrar's office I was told that in the past the graduates have not procured invitations, but that extra copies of the programs to mail to parents may be secured of the registrar. If the February graduates wish to take any action a meeting of those concerned will be called at once.

At a meeting of the property committee of the board of regents the contract for the roofing of the new engineering buildings was let to a local firm. Arrangements were also made for more heat at the Temple building. A plan is being pushed by Regent Allen, advertising the business methods of the university and to this end the report to the governor is being mailed to residents of various sections of the state. The object is to acquaint people with what is being done with the money appropriated to the state university each year by the legislature.

O. A. BELTZER CAPTAIN

ARAPAHOE BOY WILL LEAD 1909 CORNHUSKER ELEVEN.

ELECTED BY A MAJORITY OF ONE

Louis Harte, His Only Opponent, Receives Six of Fourteen Votes. Collins and Frum Both Withdraw From Race.

Oren A. Beltzer of Arapahoe, Neb., was elected captain of the 1909 Nebraska football eleven yesterday afternoon, receiving a majority of one vote over his opponent, Louis Harte. Only one ballot was taken, the vote standing eight for Beltzer and six for Harte. Beltzer has been on the Cornhusker football team for two years. He also is captain of the baseball nine for this spring. In the fall of 1907 he won his gridiron "N" by playing in the Minnesota game at left end. Last fall he was left halfback on the eleven and was a brilliant star in punting and in throwing the ball on the forward pass. His passing of the spheroid in this latter play was so accurate that he won the reputation of being one of the best open play football men in the Missouri Valley. It was his punting in the Iowa and Ames games that gave Nebraska the necessary advantage for scoring on several occasions.

Absence Was Felt.

His absence from the second half of the Minnesota game last fall probably cost the Cornhuskers that contest. Coach Cole believed that had the new captain of the Cornhuskers played all of that game his punting would have enabled his team to get near enough to the Gopher goal to score.

Beltzer played third base on the varsity baseball nine last spring, and the season before, and was considered the best man on the nine. His work with the Cornhusker ball twirlers attracted the attention of several professional baseball managers who attempted to hire him for next summer. Beltzer, however, liked the college sport too well and turned down all the offers.

The result of the election today was predicted yesterday morning. After the failure of the fourteen "N" men to elect a captain at the meeting before the holidays it was seen that it would be futile for either Collins or Frum to continue in the race any longer. Up to the holidays they had been the only men mentioned for the captaincy and had split the fourteen votes causing a deadlock which could not be broken until one or both of them decided to withdraw.

Held Caucus Yesterday.

Before the election this afternoon the followers of Frum held a caucus at which their leader announced that he would withdraw from the contest. One of his supporters had been Beltzer, and to him he threw his vote. The other players who had been supporting Frum decided to vote for Beltzer and this assured the Arapahoe boy of seven votes.

When it became known that Frum had withdrawn Collins also quit the race and six of his votes went to Harte. One of his followers, however, cast his vote for Beltzer, giving the Arapahoe boy eight votes, or the necessary number to elect.

Frum, who played left tackle on the varsity for two years, announced today his intention of taking a degree at the close of this semester. This means that he will not return to school next fall and will not play football again. It is also rumored today that Harte will leave Nebraska at the close of this year and go to Cornell college, where he would be eligible for football in 1910.

"Agricultural geology of the Pacific coast states" and "Some Laws of Heredity" were the subjects of two interesting lectures delivered by Hon. W. J. Spillman, of the department of agriculture, before a large number of university students. The first address was given at 5 o'clock in the Temple theater and the second at 8 in the same room.

HAS BEEN MALIGNED

PROF. LE ROSSIGNOL TELLS OF POLITICAL ECONOMY.

DEFENDS THE PRACTICAL LIFE

Declares That Business Activity is Fundamentally Ethical and There is a Place for One to do Good.

At convocation yesterday Professor Le Rossignol of the political economy department spoke on the unusual subject "Bread and Butter." His talk, however, was much broader in its scope than a narrow interpretation of his subject would indicate. In fact his talk might almost be described as a discussion of the relation of luxuries and necessities to our life.

Professor Le Rossignol declared that political economy has been much maligned and often called the dismal science, and its professors have been called the professors of the dismal science. While this might have been true once, political economy is no longer the dismal science that it once was.

He declared that his subject, "Bread and Butter," might be taken as typical of the necessities and luxuries of life, the bread as typical of the necessities and the butter as typical of the luxuries. The conception of luxuries is very broad and may be taken to include almost everything. Education is one of the luxuries, and even religion in its modern sense, as meaning humanitarianism and philanthropy, is a luxury. Even good manners and good ethics are luxuries.

Standard Applied in Life.

What is known as the bread and butter standard is the one usually applied in our every day life. We don't, however, like to have these standards applied to the higher walks of life and yet they are often so applied. In valuing the work of the vast majority of people, however, a bread and butter standard is fair, and our value to society is our market value. The ordinary work of the average man is to earn his bread and butter through helping to give to society its bread and butter. This principle of exchange is at the bottom of the industrial world.

In general the thing which the world wants is the things which it needs but this is not always the case. A young person, just starting out in life, should choose some place for himself where he may give the world what it needs as well as what it wants. It is impossible for some of us who are older to change the work in which we are engaged, but it is possible for you who have not yet commenced your work to choose something in which you do the world a real service. Material is Fundamental.

In life the spiritual is to a large extent based upon the material. While a man is still struggling for his daily bread he is in no position to pursue altruistic ends. In a broad sense a very poor man is not in any position to help others to any extent.

There is a certain class of people who look upon the acquiring of bread and butter with contempt. This is usually the class that have been satiated with much. Business activity is fundamentally ethical and is the giving of an exchange value. There is a place in the world and in business for the honest person who wishes to succeed by doing good.

The finance committee of the board of regents held a meeting yesterday but no business of importance was transacted, the question of the appropriation for the summer school being laid over until the February meeting.
